

No Early Truce Is Expected in General Motors Labor Dispute

Michigan and U. S. Officials Fail in Peace Moves

CONTINUE EFFORTS

Secretary Perkins Plans Added Informal Talks

Detroit—(P)—William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors corporation defining the issue in widespread strikes affecting its plants as "property rights or no property rights," said today the next step "is up to the union."

He reiterated the corporation's willingness to negotiate with the United Automobile Workers of America as soon as sit-down strikers evacuate two Fisher Body plants at Flint, Mich., and added:

"It's up to those fellows to leave the plants."

Detroit—(P)—Hopes for an immediate settlement waned today as state and federal governmental efforts still failed to bring peace in the prolonged strikes crippling plants of the General Motors corporation.

State and federal officials gave no indication of expectations of an early break in the labor dispute which began with a strike in one factory Nov. 18, gradually spread into 16 other General Motors units and finally resulted in halting or curtailing operations in 23 more plants of the corporation.

These officials indicated, however, that they would continue to press for a solution of the deadlock that has left 135,000 General Motors employees idle.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, who conferred with Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, high executives of General Motors and the leaders of the strike at Washington, said today that she would hold further informal conversations.

Sloan in New York
Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, and John L. Lewis, the spearhead of the strike, were the only principals remaining in the east. Sloan was in New York, where he issued a formal statement yesterday afternoon outlining the corporation's position, and Lewis was in Washington.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, Governor Murphy and Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, which called the strikes, returned to Detroit today.

Sloan's statement contained these words:

"The situation must be solved, and I am sure that a way will be found to solve it fundamentally in the near future."

After reiterating that the corporation was willing to negotiate with the union, but only after "sit down" strikers have left the two plants they still occupy at Flint, Mich., Sloan said:

"The present deadlock cannot go on indefinitely. Our men wish to work. They are prevented by a small group of sit-down strikers and their leaders, who are willing to jeopardize the country's recovery in order to impose dictatorship on our industry and our people."

Must Help Employes
"Our duty is plain. We have a responsibility to our employes. This strike is costing the employes of General Motors a million dollars a day in wages. Our duty to them is to do everything possible to save them from further loss of income and from being thrown on relief."

"In the meantime, so far as our ability to carry inventory will permit, every effort will be made to afford as much work as possible to our employes who are out of work through no fault of their own."

Sloan declined to elaborate upon his statement, and his exact meaning puzzled some leaders of both pro-strike and anti-strike groups.

Aboard a train headed for Detroit, Martin told newsmen that the union would "resist" any attempt to re-open plants closed by strikes.

He added that "General Motors would be unable to resume operations in any of the other closed plants as long as the strikes continue in the 17."

Claims He Worked With Army Agents In Probing Reds

Washington—(P)—L. A. Stringham, New York representative of a national "employers' organization" told senate investigators today he worked with army and navy intelligence officers and justice department operatives in investigating "communists" and "foreign agents."

The government officers, Stringham testified before the senate civil liberties committee, often sought the aid of the National Metals Trades association—which maintains a labor spy system—to check up on "sabotage."

Jefferson, Wis.—(P)—Robert K. Henry, former state treasurer, was returned to his old position as cashier of the Jefferson County bank at the annual meeting of directors.

Roosevelt Gets Bill to Extend RFC Loan Powers

House Joins Senate in Voting Continuation of Authority

Washington—(P)—A bill extending the lending power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, approved by both houses of congress, went to the White House today for President Roosevelt's signature.

The house voted the continuation late yesterday, and also extended the commodity credit corporation, the electric farm and home authority and export-import bank.

Congress, in recess today, will plunge next week into its major problem—relief.

Chairman Buchanan (D-Texas) of the house appropriations committee hopes to bring before the house on Monday President Roosevelt's $790,000,000 request for relief funds to carry up to July 1. Leaders expect a vote by Wednesday.

First, however, the house must consider a bill providing a $30,000,000 crop production loan fund.

Evidence of alleged cooperation between a labor espionage service and government agents was sought by senate investigators in the files of the National Metal Trades association.

Kept Plants Operating
L. A. Stringham told the civil liberties committee that justice department agents and army and navy intelligence men cooperated to keep in production certain factories handling government contracts. Spokesmen of the war and justice units denied connection with the association.

The reciprocal trade agreements made with 15 other nations continued to occupy the house ways and means committee, with Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, explaining the machinery involved. Committeemen hoped to finish hearing arguments for the continuation of this policy today, and turn Monday to hearing the opposition.

Commission Reports

Finding in Train Wreck

Washington—(P)—The interstate commerce commission held today that lack of a system to provide for the proper spacing of trains was responsible for a collision on the Chicago Rapid Transit line in Chicago last Nov. 24. Eleven persons were killed in the wreck.

The commission said a Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad train was not brought under control until it was too late to avoid colliding with a train ahead.

Three recommendations were made to prevent accidents in the future: These were:

Immediate consideration be given to the need on this line for an adequate block signal system.

That wooden cars be eliminated from service as rapidly as practicable; and

That the use of wooden cars on trains with cars of steel or steel underframe construction be prohibited.

Attempted Fraud Case
Recessed Till Monday

Milwaukee—(P)—The federal court trial of L. C. Christensen, Racine real estate operator and auctioneer accused of attempted fraud against the Home Owners Loan corporation, was in recess today until Monday.

The government charged Christensen received a $940 item from an abstract to some of his property involved in an application for a $4,000 HOLC loan.

Testifying in his own defense, Christensen told the jury yesterday that the item concerned a $940 judgment obtained against him after a suit had been erected on his farm home near Racine.

Plot to Divide Russia Aired As Trials Open

Charge Group Would Have Given Territory to Germany, Japan

17 FACING COURT

Report Aid Pledged to Japan in Event of War With U. S.

Moscow—(P)—Karl Radek and 16 other accused bolsheviks pleaded guilty today to participation in a vast alleged conspiracy to overthrow the soviet regime and partition great sections of Russia to Germany and Japan.

They accepted full guilt for an amazing series of counter-revolutionary charges—among them the accusation that their "Trotskyist" plot envisaged aiding Japan with Russian oil in event Japan went to war with the United States.

Moscow—(P)—Soviet Russia opened the trials of 17 once high bolsheviks today with an amazing account of "full confessions" to a plot to partition Russia between Germany and Japan and to aid Japan with soviet oil in event that nation went to war with the United States.

The soviet government placed Karl Radek, bearded man of letters, and 16 of his accused co-plotters on trial for their lives in what was a gay ballroom in the Russia of the tsars. America's new ambassador, Joseph E. Davies, listened avidly.

Reading of the startling indictment showed complete admissions of guilt allegedly had been obtained from all 17 defendants.

They were accused of conspiring with the exiled Leon Trotsky, now in Mexico, to give the Ukraine to Germany and the soviet maritime and Amur provinces to Japan in order to obtain foreign aid in overthrowing the regime of Joseph Stalin.

The indictment went far beyond the Zinovieff-Kamenoff conspiracy accusations of last year by charging Radek and the others conspired directly with the secret agents of Germany and Japan to wreck the soviet government.

Trotsky's Letter
Many of the charges were based on a letter which Trotsky allegedly wrote to Radek in December of 1935.

"In this he is stated to have said: 'We shall have to yield the oil of Sakhalin (a soviet-Siberian island) to Japan and guarantee her a supply of oil in case of war with America.'"

Radek, seeming old and broken yet with signs of the old fire in his eyes, testified Vladimir Romm, former Washington correspondent for Izvestia, the government newspaper for which Radek wrote, helped him establish contact with Trotsky.

Romm was arrested two months ago after being called home from Washington.

Two agents provocateur were identified in the indictment as "Mister K" of Germany and "Mister X" allegedly an agent of the Japanese intelligence service.

The alleged Trotsky letter likewise was quoted as saying: "We shall have to admit her (Japan) to the exploitation of gold."

Try to Strengthen Extradition Laws

Assembly Group Would Regulate Sale and Possession of Arms

Madison—(P)—The assembly judiciary committee will sponsor three bills to strengthen Wisconsin laws on extradition of criminals and witnesses in court actions, and to regulate the sale and possession of smaller firearms.

Enactment of uniform laws by 17 states was recommended by the National Conference of Commissioners on State Laws. The Wisconsin bills were prepared by E. E. Bessard, criminal statutes.

The criminal extradition act, Brossard said, would permit seizure of a paroled convict in any of the concurring states if the parole was revoked. It would also give state officials the right to bring back a criminal suspect although they had previously permitted his removal from the state, as in cases where federal courts assume prior jurisdiction.

Regarding extradition of witnesses, Brossard explained most states now enforce compliance with subpoenas only in criminal cases where the court proceedings have started. Under the proposed law witnesses also could be compelled to appear at grand jury and John Doe hearings.

Three Killed as Blasting Powder Blows Up House

Three Others in Serious Condition in Illinois Tragedy

Fairview, Ill.—(P)—A keg of blasting powder blew up the Albert Taylor home leaving three members of the family dead today, three others in critical condition and five seriously injured with burns and other injuries.

The blast and fire occurred last night as the family sat down to their evening meal. The keg of powder, brought into the house for drying beside a stove, exploded.

The house was destroyed. The dead were Lloyd Taylor, 6; Winnifred, 8; and Hiram, 22.

Hiram suffered fatal burns in attempting to drag other members of the family from the house when flames broke out in the wake of the explosion.

Those critically injured and taken to Graham hospital in Canton were Albert Taylor, 61, the father; Edna, 57, his wife; and Wilfred, twin brother of Winnifred.

In the same hospital, but less seriously injured, were Ernest, 26; Evelyn, 35; Harold, 13; Helen, 12; and Faye, 10.

Friends said Hiram was the hero of the family disaster. After helping his brothers and sisters from the flaming dwelling he trudged almost a mile through the snow to the Charles Elliott farm house for aid.

Pontiff Facing Gangrene Threat

Pope Pius Given Injections To Combat Possible Infection

Vatican City—(P)—Pope Pius, endangered by the possibility of gangrene in an open sore on his left leg, was given injections tonight to combat what physicians thought might be the start of infection.

The 79-year-old pontiff was described as "sleepy" after the medication. Vatican sources said he took less nourishment than during the last several days.

The treatments were ordered by Dr. Amintore Milani after an almost complete obstruction of circulation in the holy father's leg. The sore appeared some time ago, caused by the bursting of a varicose vein.

Surviving Quadruplet In Critical Condition

Montreal—(Canadian Press)—A tiny baby girl, the only one of quadruplets to survive premature birth two days ago, lay perilously weak today in St. Justine hospital.

Her sister and two brothers, born Thursday in a farmhouse at Cascade Rondeau in a farmhouse at rural St. Thomas, died yesterday after a few hours after being raced by ambulance 46 miles over ice-sheathed roads on which the ambulance crashed into a snow plow.

Little Activity During Week at Sessions of Badger Legislature

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin's lawmakers, overcome by an unusual peace and quiet that is destined not to last, moved slowly through their routine business this week.

They received about 50 proposals for new laws, notified congress they were in session by sending their first bill of advice on federal legislation, and otherwise yawned for lack of something to do.

Tokio Cabinet Overthrown in Political War

Bitter Attacks Against Army Force Crisis In Japan

DEADLOCK REMAINS

Militarists Trying to Gain Control of Next Cabinet

Tokio—(P)—Japan's parliamentary political parties overthrew the cabinet of Premier Koki Hirota today, forcing the government to resign under their bitter attacks against the army.

The premier, unable to reach a compromise between the angry military leaders and the political parties, presented the cabinet's mass resignation to Emperor Hirohito after a final session of his ministers.

He was expected to request the throne to extend the present suspension of the diet to allow time for formation of the new cabinet. He would remain in office, it was expected, during the four or five days necessary for the governmental reorganization.

It was the first time in Japan's parliamentary history the lower house had succeeded in wrecking the government which always before had resorted to dissolution and a general election when the diet's opposition became too strong.

Whether it will be a true victory for the political leaders depends, observers said, on the membership of the succeeding cabinet which the militarists are striving to capture.

No Compromise Possible
Japan's stern minister of war, General Count Juichi Terauchi, brought the constitutional crisis to a head when he termed the repeated assaults from the floor of parliament "insults to the army" and demanded dissolution of the diet.

Tense days of negotiations failed to find a basis for compromise on the firm opposition of the united major and minor parties, not only to the military and financial policies of the Hirota government, but to what they charged was a growing tendency to fascism and domination by a military bureaucracy.

Scarcely had Hirota informed the emperor of the cabinet's resignation when a violent earthquake, interpreted by some as an unfavorable omen, shook Japan.

Well-informed circles said the army was concentrating on forming a new cabinet entirely militaristic in its outlook, with success depending largely on the support of the only surviving elder-statesman, prince Saionji who, next to the emperor, is still the most powerful figure in the empire.

Coast Guard Cutter in Hunt for 5 Fishermen

Baraga, Mich.—(P)—The coast guard cutter Nansemond left Marquette yesterday for Huron island in Keweenaw bay to search for Harry McIntyre, Baraga fisherman, and three aids unreported for two weeks. Huron island is about four miles off Baraga.

Captain Fred Soliman of the Portage Island, Mich., coast guard, said he had been asked to send a cutter to look for McIntyre, but that he had been unable to launch a boat in the slushy ice.

Soliman said relatives of the McIntyre party had become alarmed because of fear their food supply was running low. The men expected to return two days after going to the island.

They notified the Baraga county sheriff to call the coast guard. The names of McIntyre's companions were not learned.

Pennsylvania Girl Shot-Father, She Tells Police

Nazletown, Pa.—(P)—Policeman John Yachshaw said 19-year-old Theresa Diano, told him she shot and killed her father, Nicholas, 52, to defend herself against his advances.

The girl, whose mother died 11 years ago, was arrested. Her brother, Frank, 16, was questioned and released.

Theresa fled to the home of neighbors after the shooting last night and asked that police be called. Yachshaw said he went to the house and found Diano's body on the floor of pantry. He had been shot five times.

Madrid Told 5 Seaplanes Came From German Warship

Valencia, Spain—(P)—Almeria port authorities, reporting officially to the Spanish socialist government, charged today German seaplanes bombed the government air base at Roquetas, on the southern Mediterranean coast.

The report, delivered to the office of Air Minister Indalecio Prieto, asserted five Nazi planes, based on a German warship, dropped a number of bombs on the airfield 12 miles southwest of Almeria.

One of the five planes, it was charged, came down near the vessel after the bombardment and was taken aboard. The report said the warship was believed to be the Nazi pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

Cold Wave Slowing up Floods; Throngs Still Deserting Their Homes

Blizzard Adds to Discomfort of Cincinnati Refugees
POWER IS MENACED

Transportation Facilities Are Crippled by Waters

Cincinnati—(P)—The overburdened Ohio river overflowed its banks at more than 20 feet above flood stage here today as a blizzard and temperatures in the teens added to discomfort of an officially estimated 41,500 bedraggled victims.

The yellow waters encroached on Ohio lowlands, along a 300-mile front, drove nearly 75,000 persons from their homes and caused damage mounting toward the 10 million dollar figure.

The river threatened power service to greater Cincinnati's 750,000 residents as it slowly rose to 72.5 feet at 5 a. m.—the 72.5 crest expected by Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux.

One hundred miles up the mighty Ohio, Portsmouth was isolated except for uncertain wire and radio communication. More than 13,000 of the city's 45,000 residents were homeless and dwindling food supplies—believed adequate for two days—added to concern.

Mayor D. H. Bowling of New Boston, a Portsmouth suburb, appealed for food, declaring that 3,500 of the 6,000 residents were homeless and that facilities were practically non-existent for treating several new cases of influenza.

Crippled transportation facilities and forelorn refugees, many of whom had lost nearly all their belongings, told the outward story of brownish waters' toll in the rain-soaked Ohio valley, which recorded an average of more than six inches of fall in two days.

Cincinnati was advised to draw emergency drinking water supplies to prepare for a possible shortage. Sandbags held back water around the city's pumping and electric light plants and officials hoped they would hold out to 74 feet—one and one-half foot higher than the expected crest.

The gas supply was shut off in Portsmouth's flooded business district as a precaution against explosions of water-weakened mains.

Fire Out in Jail
"Water is pouring into the basement of the city hall and jail," Bud Smith, reporter for the Cincinnati Enquirer, said by telephone from isolated Newport, Ky., where 80 city squares or approximately one-third of the city of 30,000 was under water, with 10,000 homeless.

"The fires are out and 40 prisoners are howling from cold."

As rescue workers toiled on and on at their seemingly unending tasks, tall, gray-haired Forecaster Devereaux, 63, and his overworked assistants said the waters here had climbed above the previous high of 71.1 feet set in that disastrous month of February, 1934.

Say Reich Planes Bombed Air Base

Madrid Told 5 Seaplanes Came From German Warship

Valencia, Spain—(P)—Almeria port authorities, reporting officially to the Spanish socialist government, charged today German seaplanes bombed the government air base at Roquetas, on the southern Mediterranean coast.

The report, delivered to the office of Air Minister Indalecio Prieto, asserted five Nazi planes, based on a German warship, dropped a number of bombs on the airfield 12 miles southwest of Almeria.

One of the five planes, it was charged, came down near the vessel after the bombardment and was taken aboard. The report said the warship was believed to be the Nazi pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

The time of the alleged attack was set at 6 o'clock this morning. A socialist vigilance officer made the first report to Almeria authorities from Puente del Sabinal, the allegation said. He declared he followed the plane movements with binoculars from his station on the southern coast.

Four of the planes flew off in the direction of Ibiza, one of the Balearic islands, he said, while the fifth was lifted to the warship's deck.

The warship, prior to the asserted assault on the aviation base, was cruising eight miles southeast of Cabo de Gata, the report said.

The charges were declared to have been substantiated by other vigilance officers stationed around Almeria.

$20,000 FIRE LOSS
West Bend, Wis.—(P)—Fire spread by the apparent explosion of a coke salamander destroyed a warehouse and new addition of the Pick Manufacturing Co. yesterday. The loss was estimated at $20,000 to $25,000.

Roosevelt Urges People to Raise Flood Aid Fund

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt issued a proclamation today asking the nation to raise $2,000,000 as a "minimum relief fund" for flood victims in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys.

The president said 270,000 persons had been driven from their homes and that it was "imperative" that the people contribute to assist the Red Cross in providing immediate relief.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, retired, chairman of the Red Cross, simultaneously issued a statement saying at least $3,000,000 was required to meet "minimum needs," and that the relief society could provide $1,000,000 at once.

Fourteen thousand work relief employees in the flood states were diverted to rescue and relief duty yesterday as part of the federal government's efforts to aid sufferers. The coast guard rushed surf boats and amphibian planes to remove marooned families.

Many Lacking Food and Water in Isolated Areas
KENTUCKIANS HIT

Cincinnati—Ohio river reaches stage of 72.8 feet, with higher crest feared tomorrow; number of homeless rises to 56,500 in Cincinnati area; damage forecast at $5,000,000.

Louisville, Ky.—Forty thousand Kentuckians abandon homes before greatest flood in history; power out, roads closed; third of city facing submersion.

Chicago—Works progress authorities ready to throw 50,000 relief workers into stricken states.

Portsmouth, Ohio—Milk and food shortage feared; half city inundated; 20,000 refugees need aid.

Washington—American Red Cross asks nation for $2,000,000 to aid flood victims. President urges help.

St. Louis—Red Cross estimates number of refugees in Illinois, Arkansas and Missouri at 40,000.

Evansville, Ind.—Army of mercy moves in to aid 33,000 Indiana flood victims.

40,000 IN FLIGHT
Louisville, Ky.—Forty thousand Kentuckians are deserting their homes today before the worst Ohio river flood in history. Thirty thousand already were homeless.

Water isolated cities and towns, flooded the drinking water, spoiled their power and destroyed property running into millions.

Snow and sleet pelted the refugees, many of whom lacked food, clothing, shelter and medicine. The cold wave slowed up the rise of creeks and rivers but it brought help only after the Ohio, Mississippi, Green, Kentucky, Big Sandy, Licking and Salt rivers had neared or exceeded their all time high records, which were set in the disastrous flood seasons of 1913 and 1934.

Six thousand of Louisville's 330,000 people were homeless, quartered with friends, kinsmen or by charity, when the Ohio river went 48.5 feet, near a foot above the record. A 50-foot stage was due today and a rise of two feet more was feared.

National guardsmen patrolled the flooded areas and furnished coats and clothing to hundreds of the refugees.

Boats Ride Streets
The 52-foot stage would inundate a third of the city, according to a government map of city levels. Already several square miles are submerged. Boats ride the current in streets that were the heart of the great wholesale district. Buildings through which industrial commerce flowed to two million persons sheltered the craft, which took shelter from the raging current in midstream.

Theaters and schools closed. Two churches suspended tomorrow's services. A foot and a half of water in the basement caused evacuation of the Jewish hospital.

Louisville's waterworks was drowned out. Until further notice the people will be restricted to two hours service a day, drawn from the reserves. Electric power was short.

Favors Increase in Postal Savings Limit

Washington—Investors will be able to bank just twice as much in Postal savings as they now can if a bill reintroduced by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton becomes law.

Schneider has again submitted his bill to increase the maximum which may be deposited in Postal Savings from $2,500 to $5,000.

The Schneider bill has the support of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and many small investors. An observer pointed out that while the demand for an increase in the limit of $2,500 is still great, it has fallen off since establishment of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

DEATH AND MISERY SPREAD BY 'GREATEST FLOOD'

The "greatest flood on record" was predicted by authorities for many localities along the Ohio river as debris-filled waters drove upwards of 100,000 persons from their homes and caused unestimated property damage. Developments are shown on this map with shaded portions representing land either already flooded or threatened with inundation.

Congress Likely To Act This Term On Earlier Ballot

Has Power to Act Without Need of Constitutional Change

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Rain-soaked Washington has talked it little else this week than the risks the president and the whole official group took in the bad weather of inauguration day.

Mr. Roosevelt came through the ordeal without any illness. His riding down the avenue in a closed car toward the capital was at the request of Vice President Garner, who begged him to do so. But Mr. Roosevelt was probably surprised to find that Mr. Roosevelt went back up the avenue in an open car in disregard of all admonition.

The president's physical fortitude has perhaps not been as widely known as it is today because of his exhibition of hardship, but most of his friends and admirers would have preferred an indoor inauguration rather than to have him or the crowd incur the risks of the day.

Out of the discussion has come a suggestion that the national capital build a huge auditorium for public purposes. This may be done as a part of a large building program for the District of Columbia, which Mr. Roosevelt has informally recommended.

The principal result of the inauguration day experience, however, concerns not so much the weather, but the possible embarrassments that might arise hereafter because election day and inauguration day are so close together.

Install Equipment At Disposal Plant

Only Minor Adjustments Necessary in Operation of System

Laboratory equipment and meters are being installed at the sewage disposal plant and the interior of the office building is being finished.

Sewage is being treated at the plant daily and only minor adjustments have had to be made thus far. The sewage is not being treated with chemicals and this will not be started until laboratory equipment has been installed so that tests can be made as to how much chemical treatment is needed.

Clarence O. Baetz, superintendent, stated that only a small amount of chemical is required until summer much more will be needed.

Water drained from the settling tanks goes into the river with about 90 per cent of the sewage removed at the present time. About two feet of sewage is in the digester tank.

WPA Indexing Project Completed This Week

Workers this week completed a WPA project carried on in the office of the clerk of courts at the court house. Civil action and law suits of municipal court since 1907 and of circuit court since 1903 were indexed. Naturalization records since 1853 also were checked with copies sent to the naturalization bureau at Chicago and Washington, D. C.

Work Office Is Important Aid To Industries

Job Bureau Can Save Employers Time, Money, Manager States

From an employer's point of view, the Wisconsin Employment Service bureau has many advantages, according to Fred R. Gehrke, manager. Much time and money is saved by having the first general selection of applicants for a job taken care of by the employment office, he explained.

Only picked men, the ones who out of many possibilities most nearly meet the requirements, are sent for an interview with the employer and this means that every employer who calls on the service for workers has at his disposal the largest reservoir of labor in the state, Gehrke brought out.

"When layoffs are necessary, employers may suggest that the released men register with the local employment office," he went on. "This will help the employees to bridge over a difficult adjustment and will make it easy for the firm to get in touch with them, provided they are still seeking work, when rehiring is possible."

"If an employer's needs cannot be met locally, the employment service, through a system for the exchange of information about work opportunities, can comb the country until the right person for the job is found."

Influenza Prevalent In Outagamie County

A total of 44 cases of influenza, exclusive of those in Appleton, were reported in Outagamie county during the week ended Jan. 16, a state board of health report to Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, shows.

The report lists 10 cases in the village of Bear Creek, 6 in the town of Black Creek, 8 in the village of Black Creek, 5 in the town of Deer Creek, 2 in the town of Oneida, 3 in the town of Osborn and 4 in the town of Seymour.

THESE SCHOOL BOYS HATE TO HEAR THE DISMISSAL BELL

Here's one group of students who enjoy study—but it's in handicraft and woodworking. Shown above is a group of boys at work in the Park school workshop, where they spend three hours, three times a week in various projects. The boys are taught the correct use of tools and how to properly care for them. They are given many household problems to solve and their training is expected to enable some of them to select a trade to follow in future years. Shown in the picture are B. D. Rice, the instructor, in center, in the foreground at right, Sylvester Huss, left, and Norbert Otte, while in the rear with the instructor are: left to right, Raymond Burns, William Van Lieshout, and John Flanagan. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Classes End Too Soon for Seventh, Eighth Grade Boys

Kaukauna—Industrial arts classes in which boys of public and parochial schools are almost too enthusiastic about their work are conducted at both the Park and Nicolet schools here by B. D. Rice, handicrafts and woodwork instructor.

Pupils of Holy Cross, Park and Trinity Evangelical Lutheran schools meet in the Park school workshop from 1 until 4 o'clock each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, and on Monday and Wednesday afternoons similar instruction is offered by Mr. Rice at Nicolet school for boys of St. Mary's Catholic and the Nicolet school.

Varying a policy of former years, seventh grade pupils constitute the handicraft classes while eighth grade boys comprise the woodworking groups. In the Park school shop, which gives the boys access to about $1,500 worth of tools and equipment, the pupils do woodwork, metal shaping, wood finishing and painting, show card lettering, upholstering and other handicraft work.

Plenty of Equipment
Included in the available machinery are a spray gun and air compressor, an electric band-saw, a grinder which is used for sharpening tools, knives and ice-skates, and a lathe with which dowl pins are made. Rounding legs for chairs, rounding rolling-pins and manufacturing nut bowls and goblets are facilitated by use of the lathe.

Much unnecessary oral instruction is eliminated during class hours by the distribution of job-sheets, which state specifically what Mr. Rice desires to be done and how he expects the task to be accomplished. The boys appreciate this method, and are ambitious to complete one job and get an early start on the next of the job-sheet series. It also gives more time for individual supervision.

The handicraft and woodworking boys are one group of students who never need encouragement to work more diligently, according to Mr. Rice, who enjoys helping the boys when difficulties arise.

Boys Hate to Quit
"My greatest difficulty is getting the boys to stop working when it's time to clean up the shop."

Cleaning up shop after work is an important part of the afternoon program, as is learning to care for and handle tools properly. Charts which explain construction of tools are hung about the walls of the workshop. Every tool has its place and no boy leaves class until everything is in order.

Mr. Rice takes opportunity to instruct his boys in how to repair household appliances and respond to various emergencies which may arise, as when the kitchen sink gets plugged up. Occasionally, the work room sink drain is purposely plugged with sawdust and the boys are told to "go ahead and fix it."

Braid Leather Thongs
Youths in the handicraft classes braid leather thongs into balls, watch-fobs, referee's whistle-holders, wrist-watch straps and bracelets. They string colored beads into intricately designed belts, one of which now nearing completion spells out the designer's full name.

They weave rope and colored fibre into brilliant stool coverings, waffle mats, rugs, doormats, bathing slippers, purses, hats and brushes.

At Christmas time several of Mr. Rice's pupils made greeting cards of copper, wood and cork, which materials are also used in the manufacture of desk sets, bird houses, plant ornaments and souvenirs.

A number of the lads are learning to tie almost every conceivable sort of knot, while others are using solder and tools in shaping sugar-scoops from old tin cans. Installation of a small loom in the near future will enable boys to weave attractive scarfs and neckties, Mr. Rice says.

Woodworking classes, composed of eighth grade lads, are occupied in construction of book shelves, end tables, corner shelves, book ends, radio tables, magazine racks, stools and other projects. One boy at the Park school shop is finishing a foot stool and handling the complete upholstery job himself.

Pupils use all types of wood for their various jobs, ranging from an inexpensive pine wood doorstop to a beautifully grained, mahogany book shelf.

Waltonian Hits "Slot Machine Methods" in Abuse of Resources

Only through the training of youth at home and in school can conservation of our natural resources become an effective program instead of merely a lofty phrase re-echoed passively by disinterested citizens and defied by lawbreakers. R. L. Swanson, president of the Appleton chapter of the Isaac Walton league, told members of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce last night.

Speaking at the organization's anniversary banquet in the Conway hotel, Swanson struck at what he called "slot-machine methods" practiced in the forests and streams of this country and declared that America "must direct her efforts towards boys and girls if she expects to get conservation."

"You cannot go putting in little and expecting to get the jackpot," he declared. "We have too many hunters and too few sportsmen. Don't go out to 'get the limit' just to be able to brag about it."

Swanson pointed to the tourist business of this state as a practical reason for guarding the left of Wisconsin's woods and game.

"People won't come here unless we have something to offer," he stated. "Isn't that reason enough to be careful with that which brings them here now?"

Reiterating his conviction that the success of such efforts lies in training of youth, Swanson said that "the bottom boys are pesky little savages and our job is to get a grip on them and instill an awareness of conservation."

He recommended that conservation become a course of study in public school throughout the nation.

Praises Outdoors The speaker praised the outdoors for its strengthening influences on humans and said that conservation means not only the protecting of minerals, timber, and game, but also of people.

He denounced game law violators who hold "out-of-season venison roasts and backwoods partridge stews" and said that the real test of honesty comes when the hunter "at his breakfast table is eating venison and had only his conscience and his dog to scrutinize his behavior."

Following his talk, Swanson entertained the group with two sets of moving pictures, the first depicting conservation work among students at Wilson Junior High school and the second in color showing scenes at New Orleans and in Florida during a trip at Christmas time.

JUNIOR CHAMBER GIVES CIVIC AWARD

Martin Unmuth Receives Junior Chamber Award For Community Service

Martin Unmuth, who likes to fish and who operates Unmuth's pharmacy on Wisconsin avenue, last night was awarded the distinguished service medal given annually by the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce to the young man, 35 years or under, who has been most zealous in his service to the community during the past year.

The presentation was made by F. N. Belanger, president of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce, before about 40 members of the junior organization at a banquet in the Conway hotel.

Belanger described Unmuth as "a young man who has always been active in worthwhile civic affairs" and congratulated him "on behalf of the community and the members of the senior Chamber of Commerce."

A member of the committee who selected the winner of the medal, Belanger said: "Although we knew Unmuth was chairman of the county Democratic committee, we entertained no political considerations. Most of the men on the committee were Republicans anyway."

Unmuth, 35, is chairman of the Appleton Red Cross safety committee. He has been one of the leaders of the schoolboy safety patrol project, holds the presidency of the Holy Name council, and is an energetic Y. M. C. A. worker.

With his wife and three children, two sons and a daughter, he lives in back of his drugstore at 208 East Wisconsin avenue. He was born in Oshkosh and has lived in Appleton for seven years.

Belanger was introduced as toastmaster by George Howden, president of the junior organization.

The toastmaster commended the young men for their vigorous participation in "every activity that has as its object the betterment of the community."

"You'll fill a definite need," he said, "and give to the community the stimulation of your youth."

Last night's banquet was in celebration of the seventh anniversary of the founding of the national junior chamber of commerce which now has taken on an international character. The Appleton chapter was founded in 1930.

Ten new members were introduced to the group last night by Clarence Scherer of the Appleton Vocational school. They are Martin Van Dyke, L. M. Rosholt, Lester E. Asmus, Gordon Vandeveld, Milan F. Endter, Glenn Arthur, Dr. Louis McBain, Warren Terrien, Dr. Robert McCarty, and Edward Stames, the latter a sustained member over the age limit of 35 years.

At the close of the meeting, Howden read a letter from A. W. Parnell, chairman for President Roosevelt's birthday ball to be held at the Rainbow pavilion Jan. 30, asking the support of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in the ticket drive.

Howden appointed Glenn Arthur, Roy McNeill and Robert Rule as members of the committee from the organization.

Mayor Goodland was unable to be present at last night's banquet.

It Is Said--

That Clarence O. Baetz, superintendent of the sewage disposal plant, gets plenty of leg exercise these days while numerous minor adjustments are being made at the plant. There are 71 steps leading from the grit chamber and office up the hill to the digester tanks and boiler room and he makes the climb from five or six to twenty times a day.

Floyd Granger was the proud holder of a perfect cribbage hand of 29 points in a game at Zonie's tavern at New London Thursday evening. He held three fives and the jack of hearts and turned up the five of hearts. Granger claims the hand occurs about once in 25,000 deals.

That careful driving on icy streets apparently is becoming a habit of Appleton motorists. In spite of the current driving hazard, no traffic accidents have been reported to Appleton police since Jan. 14.

Oshkosh Man Will Speak at Camera Club Meet Jan. 30

Photographic Exhibit Will Be Shown at Green Bay Y. M. C. A.

Paul E. Bell, Oshkosh, artist photographer, will be guest speaker at a banquet sponsored jointly by the Appleton and Green Bay Camera clubs at the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, Jan. 30. Robert W. Luebke heads the committee in charge of banquet tickets in Appleton.

The speaker is known for his pictorial photographic prints, done in the style of the prominent west coast photographer, William Mortensen, of whom Bell is a former student.

Approximately 100 of the 324 prints entered by 79 exhibitors in the Fox River Valley Photographic exhibit will be on display at the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. beginning Friday, Jan. 29 and continuing through Monday, Feb. 8.

The banquet is being held to celebrate the successful management by the two clubs of the exhibit which aroused nationwide interest among amateur photographers and attracted prints from all parts of the United States. Represented in the exhibit are some of the foremost amateur photographers of the country.

Judging Completed Judging of the prints was completed recently by a committee of prominent amateurs headed by Dr. Max Thorek, Chicago, and including L. H. Longwell, Fred Lawrence and M. Shiegeta, Chicago, and Denver Timmons, Christon, O.

Prints to be hung will include 20 by the judges, not in competition but simply for inclusion in the exhibit; the 30 selected by the judges as particularly meritorious, and 60 others selected from high point winners in the competition.

After the public exhibition of the prints in Green Bay they will be on display in Appleton and nine other cities. Many more requests for use of the prints have been made for special exhibits, but the number of places where they may be shown has been restricted since all prints must be returned to entrants by May 15.

Reservations for the banquet may be had by phoning Robert Luebke or writing him in care of the Appleton Camera club.

Whooping Cough Strikes In First 2 Years of Life

Madison—"Whooping" cough strikes during the first two years of life, declares the State Medical Society in their health bulletin today.

"Twenty per cent of the cases of whooping cough occur in the first year of life and about 50 per cent of the cases occur during the first two years. There were 6,552 cases in Wisconsin during the first eleven months of last year.

"Whooping cough is one of the most contagious diseases of childhood. It causes more deaths than do most of the other infectious diseases of childhood, being particularly dangerous if it is contracted by a child under the age of two years.

"We find that the epidemics of whooping cough occur during the winter months. The epidemics occur and continue to grow because the disease is not recognized when it is at its most contagious stage.

The first evidence of whooping cough is a cold or a cough. It is during this stage that it is transmitted, when parents consider the child's affliction as 'only a cold.' It is spread by the discharge of the nose and throat that is sprayed on others during the act of coughing or sneezing. The handling of toys and other objects that are contaminated with this discharge is also responsible for the spread of the germs.

"Suppose that a child is exposed, what may happen? For a week or two weeks after the exposure (referred to as the incubation period) no symptoms appear and the child appears to be normal. At the end of this time the symptoms of a cold may develop; this is what is called the catarrhal stage. It is when the disease is in this stage that it becomes highly contagious. In other words, the child becomes a spreader of whooping cough before his parents know that he has it. After the catarrhal stage the characteristic whooping appears. For a period of two or three weeks after the whoop is noticed the child may be a source of infection and should be isolated from other children.

Seek Serum "Within the last few years great efforts have been made to find a serum or vaccine that would give positive protection against the disease. Despite the diligent efforts that have been made to secure this protection, medical science cannot offer the same assurance of immunity when this vaccine is used as they can when preventive measures are used to protect the child against smallpox and diphtheria. The pertussis vaccine (whooping cough vaccine) is recommended by many physicians now as they feel that they can assure the parents of at least a 50 per cent protection to the children. It has now become one of the recommended preventive procedures for children and is recommended for administration early in the first year of life.

"The control of the spread of contagious and infectious diseases lies in the recognition of the fact that colds are the first evidence of many of our childhood diseases. Respect for the common cold as a source of infection will do much to reduce the incidence of the childhood diseases such as whooping cough, scarlet fever, and measles."

Red Cross Seeks $390 for Refugees in Flooded Areas

Outagamie county chapter of American Red Cross last night was asked to aid in the national Red Cross drive for emergency relief funds to aid homeless people in flood-stricken areas in eight states in the middle west. A. G. Meating, chairman of the chapter, received a telegram last night urging an immediate response of funds to help in the relief work.

The Outagamie chapter was asked to raise $390 as its share of the $2,000,000 relief fund needed to carry on the Red Cross work in aid of refugees. Chairman Meating said today he would welcome contributions and that money donations will be received by Mrs. S. C. Shannon, secretary, at the Red Cross headquarters at 104 E. College avenue.

The telegram sent by Cary T. Grayson, national chairman of Red Cross, reads:

"An hourly increasing need of flood victims in eight states. Red Cross calling on people of United States for minimum relief fund of $2,000,000. Reports received late tonight indicate total of 270,000 men, women and children driven from their homes and now depending upon Red Cross for emergency relief, including food, shelter, bedding, medical attention and warm clothing. Raging blizzard and freezing weather in many flooded sections add to suffering of refugees and greatly increase need for instant relief. Feel sure people your community will wish to aid promptly and generously. Urge you take immediate action. Raise your chapter quota of $390, reporting to Midwestern office, St. Louis, Mo."

This week a state official informed the business men that the market day was all right but the system of giving prizes wasn't.

Living Standards Can be Lifted by Budgeting Plan

Babson Finds U. S. Standards Have Not Been Lowered

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park, Mass. — Everybody realizes that business is much better today than it was in the "Bank Holiday" of March, 1933. Actually it is now above normal in volume and it is not far from the 1929 top. Yet I find a persistent feeling among all classes that American living standards have dropped to a permanently lower level. Various reasons are behind this gloomy belief that there can never again be "two cars in every garage." Hence, I have prepared a special study to determine just where the living standard of the average man in America is today compared with past years.

First, I am glad to report that living standards definitely have not gone on a permanently lower basis. They have rallied sharply from the depression low. In comparison with past periods, they are now at the highest level in history excepting only the years from mid-1924 to mid-1930. As a matter of fact, the percentage gain in our living standards from the depression pit has been greater than the advance in business activity. On the other hand, business is only 12 per cent under the September, 1929, top, while living standards are still almost 20 per cent below. Business is actually back to the figures of late 1929, but living standards have not yet pushed above the levels of early 1930.

Why should business be closer to the 1929 peak than living standards if the latter have rallied more vigorously than business? The principal reason is our constantly rising population curve. The total gain in our population since 1929 has been about eight million. Right here I should define living standards. Stated simply, our standard of living means the total number of goods produced in excess of bare living requirements divided by the total number of people. Hence, because we have had a big increase in our population, total industrial output must break through the 1929 highs before living standards can again reach their old-time peaks.

Ten Million To Work
Now, why have living standards come back sharper from the low levels than business activity? The principal reason is that temporarily wages and payrolls have come ahead faster than prices. In certain industries wage rates are today still pitifully low; but in many others they are at an all-time high. Furthermore, not only are those employed receiving better pay and getting in more hours, but ten million jobless have gone back to work since 1933. The nation's weekly pay envelope has fattened along with this tremendous gain in business activity and industrial output. Even so, there are still millions out of work in the country today who must be supported by the earnings of those gainfully employed. Naturally, this worries the average man who does not believe that our living standards can improve under such conditions.

Now, what is the future trend of our scale of living? Does my chart give hope of our ever breaking through the 1929 gilded peaks or is 1929 to be the zenith for all time? My chart is definitely bullish. It shows a strong rising trend and it forecasts that living standards will follow industrial output into a greater era of prosperity than we have ever known. In recent years, great strides have been made in industrial efficiency. Leading authorities state that in a few industries each worker can produce fifty per cent more today than he could in the last boom. The increase in efficiency for all industries averages about twenty per cent.

Labor-saving machinery
This progress is significant. Temporarily, it may seem bearish to those who see the machines pushing men out of work. After the period of readjustment is over, however, it will become apparent to everyone that it is a great forward step. In the long run it will mean one or a combination of three things. (1) Prices of goods will be one-sixth less. (2) Wages will be one-fifth higher. (3) Each worker will have one-sixth more time to himself. This has been the experience of the motor and other industries over the past quarter-century where wages have been steadily boosted higher, prices constantly pushed lower, and hours gradually cut shorter.

There is, however, one dark spot in the outlook for American living standards—that is waste. Billions of dollars are squandered every year in the United States. I estimate that accidents, fires, worthless products, useless competition, failures, sickness and the like eat up $25,000,000,000 annually. To this terrific destruction must now be added the new item of government extravagance. Living standards are advanced through improvement in production methods which result in multiplying wealth or increasing our annual "goods income." But, reaucracy, boondoggling, shelling dirt from one pile to another—these do not create wealth or produce goods. They destroy our wealth and dissipate our income in terms of goods.

Inflation Another Threat
Our federal expenditures this past year represented ten per cent of our national income. Ten years ago they constituted less than five per cent. This constantly rising cost of government is a perpetual reminder that money inflation lurks in the offing. The major result of inflation would be the sharp upping of living costs. The "goods income" of wage and salary workers would automatically be ripped to shreds. Total living costs are today only twenty per cent above the 1933 low but they are definitely on the way up. Trade competition from countries with low-paid la-

The Story of the Popes

4 Americans Members of College of Cardinals

BY A. EDWARD STUNTZ
VATICAN CITY—(AP)—When death robs the Holy See of its supreme sovereign it becomes temporarily a sort of oligarchy of the Sacred College of Cardinals. The college includes four American cardinals: O'Connell of Boston, Dougherty of Philadelphia, Mundelein of Chicago and Hayes of New York.

Sixty-seven purple-clad princes of the church form the oligarchy. But like all group governments one man stands out above the rest as supreme chieftain in executive matters.

Pacelli Ranks Highest
He is cardinal camerlengo, or chamberlain of the Church of Rome—now Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli. During the ensuing weeks he becomes a sort of pope pro-tem. His ascendancy over other cardinals dates back centuries when the camerlengo was responsible for the supervision of tithes and fees from the various dioceses.

To Cardinal Pacelli, slender and ascetic scholar and diplomat who has always yearned for monastic life, falls the duty of authenticating the death of the pope.

A few hours later, acting according to Vatican law, he takes over the papal apartments. Swiss and Noble guards transfer their escorts of honor from the late pontiff's quarters to his personal residence.

Announces Death
The cardinal receives the Fisherman's ring, symbol of authority graven with the figure of St. Peter in a boat, after it has been drawn from the dead pontiff's finger by the master of the papal chamber, who is also a menace to our own existence scale.

Thus far I have been speaking of living standards in terms of the nation as a whole. In Germany or Italy and other regimented nations the national outlook is the outlook for the individual. The United States and Canada, however, are among the few nations in the world where the individual can better the national living standard. America is still the land of opportunity. The best way to lift your own future living standards above average is to manage your present income wisely. Personal budgeting is one method. Methodical management, wise and thrifty saving will bring better living standards than blowing your weekly wage or monthly salary on useless fills. Remember the old adage: "Income $1, expenses 95 cents, result happiness; but income $1, expenses $1.05, result misery!"

Business today, as registered by the Babsonchart, is 1 per cent above normal and 13 per cent above a year ago.

Please Drive Carefully

administrative responsibility falls to Cardinal Pacelli during the interim. government other cardinals, prelates and lay officers are prominent in its execution. They are:

Pignatelli Presides
Cardinal Gennaro Pignatelli di Belmonte, 85-year-old dean of the Sacred College. He must preside at the balloting of the conclave, which starts on the twenty-second day after the death of the pope, and to him falls the duty of asking the new pope to accept his sovereignty.

Cardinal Francesco Marchetti-Selvaggiani, vicar general and judge ordinary of Rome. He recites the first mass after the death of the pope and orders the death notices to be posted in all Roman churches.

Cardinal Lorenzo Lauri, Penitentiary. He recites the incense over his late sovereign. He is the first to announce the identity of the new pope from St. Peter's loggia. His office is the other of the two which does not lapse with a pontiff's death.

Funeral Duty
Monsignor Arboire Mella di Sant'Elia. As master of the papal chamber he removes the Fisherman's ring. He is called on to close the state veneration of the body and at the funeral covers Pius' face.

Monsignor Joseph Wilpert, protonotary, or ecclesiastical notary public. To him falls the duty of reporting authentications of the death and withdrawal of the Fisherman's ring. He must be present at the closing and opening of the electoral conclave.

Other Officials
Prince Ludovico Chigi-Albani, layman marshal of the conclave. He holds the keys to Vatican City during the ad interim government and is in charge of all civil arrangements for the conclave. His post is hereditary and has been held by some member of his family since 1712.

THE KING'S PARTY

A clearer understanding of the position of the monarch in the English system of government will become evident upon reading excerpts from the recent proceedings in the House of Commons and comparing the difficulties considered with other periods of English history.

In his statement to the Commons Mr. Baldwin said among other things:

"I pointed out to the King the danger of the divorce proceedings; that if a verdict was given in that case which left the matter in suspense for some time, that period of suspense must be dangerous, because then everyone would be talking. And when once the press begins, as it must begin sometime in this country, a most difficult situation would arise for me and for him, and there might well be the danger which both he and I have seen through all this, and one of the reasons why he wanted to take this action quickly was that there should not be sides taken and factions grow up in this country where no faction ever ought to exist."

When he spoke of factions Mr. Baldwin referred to the fact that the tranquility of Britain under the monarchy is based upon an absence of either a King's Party or a party opposed to the King as such.

This point was further emphasized when Josiah Wedgwood, a laborite, intimated that there would be an Edwardian party. Mr. Wedgwood should be more familiar with the history of his country and the tragic happenings that have attended the formation of a monarch's party which is bound to put the royal personage directly into politics.

It is only necessary to go back as far as the ill-fated reign of George III. There was a King's party at that time and in no other comparable period did Britain lose so much from every standpoint.

George III put up a determined fight for the maintenance of the royal authority over every other sort of authority. Edward VIII has bowed to the supremacy within their field of the representatives of the people. But George III lost his fight because his armies were losing various important battles with the American colonies. The surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga and Cornwallis at Yorktown didn't cheer the king's party back in those revolutionary days. In order for George III to override the authority of the people it was necessary for him first to be rid of William Pitt, prime minister par excellence, who would not concede a point the determination of which did not belong to the king any more than his present day successor, Mr. Baldwin. Neither did it take George III long to control the Commons by the use of royal favor and the national income. With the Commons and the Cabinet George III had his way about the American colonies—and lost them. He was defeated politically in England because George Washington crushed the political favorites whom he boosted into important army positions. But as the American war went against him and other bungling steps in other parts of the world turned out unfortunately to the Commons passed the famous Dunning resolution, although by a very slim majority:

"That it is necessary to declare that the influence of the Crown has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished."

That was the end of the King's party and it has never since appeared. George III drew up a message to his Parliament offering to abdicate but was persuaded from sending it. Ever since that time England has been one of the world leaders in progressive democracy.

Of the Dunning resolution clipping the Crown's authority an English historian has written:

"Dunning's resolution ranks in importance with the Declaration of Rights and the Declaration of Rights as an expression of the national opinion on the most vital of all constitutional questions: for it laid down the principle that the country should be ruled by ministers who, like Pitt and Peel and Palmerston and Gladstone, depended not on the confidence of the sovereign but on the confidence of an unbought and unbribed parliament. It was the death wound of personal government which henceforth floundered and struggled helplessly until, after no long while, it perished and disappeared. Personal government had endured for nearly 20 years, and had left a road as turbid and barren as any equal period in our history."

Both from an historical and a fundamental standpoint the present government of England has handled Edward VIII in a manner conducive to the perpetuation and extension of democracy in England.

IMPORTING BARREN SOCIALISTIC PRACTICES

There are certain admirable things about Europe and assuredly many interesting sights.

But we have a deepseated dislike of importing European customs, usages or practices into America without subjecting them to a painstaking consideration concerning their desirability in this land.

It must be remembered that one of the great securities of America is that we did not import from Europe the standing and century-old hatreds and suspicions of different nationalities and races there.

The German along the Rhine or the Main does not trust the Frenchman located but a short distance away. Out of that situation has been born the armies that marched and slaughtered. Of course the Frenchman who waters his stock in the Moselle resents the fact that the river will move on until its waters become useful to those who live on German soil.

Strange, is it not, that when you transplant the French and Germans to America the old world antipathy is lost, much to the benefit of this country.

Perhaps our greatest security here is that men dropped their shackles when they landed and with them most of the mad, bitter, snarling and hateful maneuvers that various conditions of life and government in Europe had brought to flower.

Yet ours is a constant battle to keep these weeds, race diseases they might be called, from getting a foothold upon our soil.

One of these somewhat emptyheaded gestures is to parade before the embassy of some foreign country as a protest against something taking place in the Ambassador's homeland. The most recent example of this consists of the three boys, Paul, Peter, and Alexander Voronaeff who are now marching up and down, picketing, in front of the residence of the Russian ambassador at Washington.

They claim that their father, who spent eight years in this country as a Baptist minister and returned to his native land in the belief that a Russian constitutional guarantee of liberty was genuine, is now in a Soviet prison without charge or rhyme or reason.

America cannot try out these controversies. Perhaps the father of these children is a good man and perhaps he isn't. Perhaps Russia is giving him a mixture of the Yiddish Twist and the Peckler's Bounce. But Russia is alone accountable for what she does to her own subjects within her own borders. And so is Germany, Italy, Britain and the rest of them.

Their practices make suitable material for comment here but not for interference.

The more we import of European ways the more likely we are to rue it.

VARIOUS CONSEQUENCES OF UNSETTLED PROBLEMS

The extent of the injury resulting from industrial conflict is portrayed in an article in the Magazine of Wall Street which shows the effect stagnation in one industry has upon others.

The magazine claims that General Motors buys and consumes 9 per cent of all steel produced in this country, 8 per cent of the copper, 15 per cent of the lead, 7 per cent of the aluminum, 11 per cent of the nickel, 20 per cent of the tires and 30 per cent of the plate glass.

Of course, a long drawn out strike or shutdown of General Motors would mean a consequent falling off in activity among its numerous producers of raw materials. In addition, however, might be cited the great hurt resulting to the railroads of the country. For in 1936 automotive products in America filled 3,525,000 carloads of freight and General Motors alone with an output of a little over 2 million cars and trucks, representing less than half of the entire industry, paid the railroads directly 50 million dollars for carrying freight.

Of course, those directly hurt are the more than 200,000 people employed in the company's 65 plants and who receive in the neighborhood of 350 million dollars a year in wages. Then there are the 350,000 stockholders who expect to receive dividends.

The trouble with all of us is that our vision is blurred too much. We do not see the normal and natural result of our own acts or our failure to act. As a consequence we are all injured where probably no injury were necessary did we insist on using our mental powers to better purpose.

But indirect hurts, like indirect taxes, seem to be our candy. When we do not see a thing straight in front of us or do not know that the injury we receive is directly attributable to some specific thing we pass or slur it over, and let it go at that.

Members of Fairbury, Neb., Volunteer Fire Department were interrupted at their 1937 New Year's dinner to answer a fire call for the first time in 12 years.

The Federal Government paid out more than $33,000,000 emergency expenditures to check unemployment and suffering in Nebraska in 1936.

Nurnberg, Germany, racial laws, now in effect, stipulate that Jewish and Aryan children are to be educated separately.

THE role that John L. Lewis is playing in the current General Motors strike is to me one of the most significant phases of the whole affair. Yesterday Lewis made clear his stand that, since labor had pulled Mr. Roosevelt through to victory (a statement that may get some arguments in the farm states which went for the president almost completely), it was now up to Roosevelt to pull labor through to victory.

What I am wondering, however, is whether Mr. Lewis wants labor pulled through to victory or whether he wants Mr. Lewis pulled through to victory.

Having personally done my turn in an automobile factory, on construction gangs, and in other such endeavors which cannot be classified in the realm of economic royalty, I am naturally in favor of anything that gives the working man a decent opportunity to make good if he is willing to work.

At the same time, it is a bit hard to see how labor will eventually be any better off under the heel of a labor dictator than it has been under the heel of such as Alfred Sloan.

It may be, of course, that in the case of the labor dictator, the motive is power ahead of profit, and in the case of General Motors, the motive is profits ahead of power. I like profits better than power because there is more fun in profits and a dictator usually gets shot at anyway.

If Mr. Lewis is given his every wish by President Roosevelt, it is obvious that things have only just begun to happen.

Mr. Lewis is not, in the broad sense, a democrat. He is extremely class-conscious and, being that way, he would like to see his class cracking the whip. Once Mr. Lewis is in a position to crack the whip, it is quite likely that he might become very embarrassing to Mr. Roosevelt.

True, the president has stated plainly he will upset no more traditions by running again in 1940, but it may be that he would like to see his ideas carried on by someone of his choice. Consequently, he may not want to squelch Mr. Lewis too much for that political reason.

Yet, if he doesn't squelch Mr. Lewis enough, it may be that Mr. Lewis will one day be in a position to squelch Mr. Roosevelt.

After all, Mr. Roosevelt was born to a high heritage in the American aristocracy, and is himself a holder of considerable real estate and good securities.

I find nothing objectionable in this status of Mr. Roosevelt's affairs. (I'd like to be in that spot myself) but how would they eventually impress Mr. Lewis?

One thing is definite in spite of all the easily-argued things I have just put down on paper: Madame Secretary Perkins does not seem to be quite enough of a man for her job just now.

Prime problem in these parts, however, is concerned with sit-down strikes that involves thermometer mercury.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

CUTTING WOOD

When we remarked that Tice was cutting wood, She said she recollected years ago, When she was young . . . In heavy coat and hood, She took her baby on her arm . . . The snow Was light . . . The winter woods lay just beyond . . . Her husband waited for her at the pond.

They trudged together on the frozen ground, The baby transferred to her husband's arm. Breathing the frosted winter air, they found The quiet day packed full of wholesome charm. The sawbuck waited by a fallen tree, Ready for their young strength and industry.

Making a bright blaze of a sprawling stump, She laid the baby by the crackling fire. . . . Though fifty years have passed, she sees His plump Sweet body, and the red flames leaping higher. And herself turning in the solitude, To meet her husband's eyes, serene and good. (Copyright, 1937)

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE CAUSE AND CURE OF PYORRHEA

In a previous talk I said most doctors and dentists now accept the view that pyorrhea is a manifestation of faulty nutrition, and I pointed out that full cooperation between doctor and dentist is necessary to check the progress of the trouble.

Let the casual reader get a wrong impression I beg to explain again that nutrition means much more than proper food or diet. It means rather the digestion, assimilation and utilization of food, water and oxygen to build up and repair body tissues and to liberate energy to do the work of the body. The clothing one wears or discards, the exercise one gets daily or avoids, and the sunshine one cultivates or dodges may be as important factors as the kind of food one eats in the causation or prevention of pyorrhea.

There is considerable clinical and scientific evidence that insufficient vitamin C in the daily intake is one factor of excessive caries or decay of teeth and of pyorrhea. In scurvy the classical signs are swelling and soreness of the gums, bleeding, loosening of the teeth. Scurvy is due to lack of vitamin C. Fresh raw food, especially fresh raw fruit or fruit juices, vegetables or their juices, quickly cures scurvy; even fresh raw (caribou) meat, as Stefansson observed in the Arctic, cures it.

Vitamin C, I surmise, is particularly advisable when child or adult is inclined to be gloomy, peevish or noticeably low-spirited. Best sources of vitamin C are oranges, lemons, grapefruit (raw or canned), tomatoes (raw or canned) and raw cabbage. The juices of these contain most of the vitamin. Cooking destroys vitamin C, but heating or cooking in vacuum (without access of air and hence without oxidation) does not. Vitamin C in any food that is allowed to stand for many hours deteriorates from vitamin C. Commercial destroys (vacuum process) preserves it. For infants and others, commercially canned tomato juice is as good a source of vitamin C as any fresh fruit or vegetable juice.

At present we believe the vitamin C in one-half or a medium-size tomato, orange or lemon is enough to prevent scurvy if given daily. The juice of a whole tomato, orange or lemon would be more nearly an optimal daily ration for an adult. To prevent dental caries (decay, cavity formation) and pyorrhea a daily ration of vitamin C equivalent to that contained in four to six ounces of fresh or factory canned tomato juice, provided the juice is taken immediately after it is expressed from the tomato or soon after the can is opened. Like orange and other juices, tomato juice deteriorates in vitamin C value on standing in air.

Fresh raw cabbage, lettuce, turnip, carrot, onion, cucumber, green pepper, radish, and fresh pineapple, strawberry, peach, watermelon, cantaloupe, celery, banana and commercially canned corn, are good sources of vitamin C.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Same and Safe Reduction
I am going on an exclusive fruit juice diet to reduce. I want to know—(Mrs. C. B. C.)

Answer—My advice is, Don't. How long did it take to accumulate the excess poundage? Why attempt to get rid of it suddenly? Send ten cent coin and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet

"Design for Dwindling," which tells how to reduce sanely and safely.

Read that lack of table salt is responsible for that tired feeling and lack of energy, especially during hot weather. (M. T.)

Answer—In any circumstances when one sweats a great deal, there is a great deal of salt excreted in the sweat, and it is advisable to add a good pinch of salt to each drink of water or to take a teaspoonful or more of salt daily to keep the salt content of blood and tissues up to normal. This has been found to prevent heat cramps, heat prostration, etc., and salt with water is more refreshing than plain water or other beverages in very hot weather. Ordinarily, however, most people take rather too much salt in or on food, and the use of the salt cellar at table is rather to be avoided. Too much salt causes retention of too much water in blood and tissues, makes the body lumpy, flabby and causes "that tired feeling and lack of energy" (Copyright 1937)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—When he was interviewed on his return from the south, he said: "Down there they like to talk about tar, and you can see crosses burning in the hills. It's an every-day occurrence for people to call you up and say, 'By the way, Joe, tonight is your turn to bring feathers.'"

When asked if "Jumbo" (a musical comedy of circus life staged in an opera house) would be his last venture of a spectacular nature, he said: "Certainly not. I am now working on a musical comedy that takes place in water."

"You mean, in a tank, in a theater?"

"No, I'll stage it in one of the Great Lakes—the one close to Cleveland."

When he was asked to describe a village he visited in east Prussia, he said: "It reminded me of a road company production of 'The Student Prince.'"

When he signed a contract in Fort Worth, Tex., to lend his showmanship to the centennial exposition, he leaned back in his swivel chair. "Gentlemen," he said, "I'll make Texas the biggest state in the Union."

When a reporter cornered him in the lobby during the intermission at a theatrical premiere and remarked, "Isn't it strange to see you here?" he said: "It'll be stranger than that if you see me after the next act. This show smells."

When a columnist asked him, "Shall we dress for your New Year's Eve party?" he replied: "Why the hell should we dress? For each other?"

And when that same writer inquired, "But don't you ever dress, even for the theater?" he answered: "No, but I make one of the boys dress just to prove that the firm has a dress suit."

When he was asked for a statement on surrealist art, he said:

"Sure, I attended the exhibition, and as I came out I realized what an ultra-conservative I was."

When asked for additional comment on the surrealists, he said: "They really are pikers. I could take Local No. 1 of the stagehands' union and put on a better exhibition!"

When Katharine Cornell and Noel Coward agreed to exchange matinee days, so that each could see the other in their current productions, he exclaimed: "I always thought Coward was anxious to get Cornell in his stock company."

Who is making these cracks? Who else but Billy Rose, Never Never Land's most irrepressible and unpredictable producer! However, these aren't cracks. These are excerpts from the graver side of the man who is known as The Little Napoleon of Broadway.

Sudden thought: Let's go down to the Ghetto and get ourselves tattooed. . . . You can get a nice bleeding heart in color for 25 cents!

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If January 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m., from 3.30 to 5.30 p. m., and from 7.30 to 9.30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8.30 to 10.30 a. m., from 5.30 to 7.30 p. m. and from 9.30 to 11.30 p. m.

This day may be one of conflicting emotions. Love may be the turning point from which will spin varying sentiments. Heartache and dejection, the consequence of harboring jealous thoughts, are the penalties paid for unfounded suspicions. Love should be strong enough to cast doubts to the four winds, for "jealousy is cruel as the grave." Be open-minded and amenable to logical explanations, if you would avoid the possibility of making a serious mistake. Generous impulses that will make the day a happy one, will be felt by the average persons you are apt to meet. Plans for giving you pleasure are likely to be submitted to you, and will be worthy of your consideration. Your social contacts ought to prove delightful this day, if you will be in a receptive frame of mind. Married and engaged couples, and those who are seeking a mate with great expectations, should remember: "No pleasure endures unseasoned by variety."

If a woman and January 24 is your birthday, you probably will visit many strange places, meet worthwhile people and gain a great amount of useful knowledge. You are perhaps a better leader than a follower. You most likely have a remarkable sense of direction. You know how to keep your own council, and, perhaps confide your personal affairs to few of your intimates or family. Too much pride may prove to be one of your greatest faults. The chances are you have already, or will in the near future, discover that you possess a talent that has a vast commercial possibilities. Through radio broadcasting, acting, singing, educational work, selling or writing you are likely to discover that you are really a very important person. The indications are you will be much happier married than single.

The child born on January 24, may have lying dormant within it the makings of a genius. Children born on January 24 usually do not give indications of any great talent until well in their teens.

If a man and January 24 is your natal day, your ideals, evidently, are very high, and your aspirations unselfishly based on the happiness their fulfillment

A Bystander In Washington

Railroad Passes

Washington—Railroads issued 133,000 passes to persons other than employees during 1936 and the interstate commerce commission is beginning to lift its eyebrows. Helping to lift the eyebrows still higher is the discovery that 871,267 passes were issued for railroad employees to travel on other lines than the one they work for.

The commission has ordered railroads to report during 1937 just what it costs to handle the 133,000 non-employee passes, as well as the 871,267 passes for employees to travel off their own lines.

Veterans' Pensions

The veterans' bureau is still paying $70 a month in pensions growing out of the War of 1812. To Carolina King of Cheektowaga, N. Y., widow of a New York militiaman, goes $50 a month. Esther Ann Hill Morgan of Independence, Ore., daughter of another New York militiaman, is paid $24 a month.

At the rate, World War pensions will be paid for more than a hundred years to come—until the year 2039.

Neutrality

What with one interruption and another, the Spanish munitions ship cleared out from New York with planes aboard, but at the same moment an equally big "shipload" of propaganda headed for Washington.

The government's seeming inability to handle the Spanish ship was the best propaganda that could be advanced by those advocating a change in the neutrality law so as to give the President greater discretion in handling arms embargo situations. Knowing ones in Washington suspected that if New York port authorities had been told in no uncertain terms to stop that ship, they could have found means to stop it.

No less an authority than Senator Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said only a day or two before the boat sailed that "public opinion" would prevent the planes and munitions being sent to Spain. He had been in close touch with the state department. Reporters got the idea that some maneuver was planned by which "public opinion" would prevent the shipment leaving America. Yet the ship cleared without a show of federal teeth.

Now the argument can, and will, be advanced that such unusual situations can not be anticipated fully by congress and the President ought to have wide power to act in emergencies.

Sonja Henie Stars In Romantic Film

Queen of Silvery Skates Displays Her Prowess In Pictures

With Sonja Henie, Queen of the Silvery Skates, executing dazzling dances on crystal ice and romancing with Don Ameche, Adolphe Menjou pulling another hilarious performance out of his bag-bag, Jean Hersholt more lovable than ever, Ned Sparks dead-panning his way to new laugh highs, the Ritz brothers running amusingly amok, Arline Judge, cute, captivating and comical, Borrah Minevitch and his gang playing hot rhythms on their harmonics, and Dixie Dunbar, Leah Ray and Shirley Deane contributing beauty and hi-de-ho, "One In A Million," the spectacular musical smash, comes Friday to the Rio Theatre.

Set in a brilliant new world of delicious new thrills, "One In A Million" tells a story of love burning as sun on snow, sprinkled with fun, roaring as an open fire, with songs you'll remember as the year's big hits.

The plot of sparkling Sonja's first screen triumph has to do with a troupe of American entertainers including the Ritz Brothers, Arline Judge, Borrah Minevitch, Dixie Dunbar and Leah Ray, in straightened circumstances, who are traveling Europe under the wing of their ebullient manager, Adolphe Menjou.

The troupe arrives at a Swiss resort, where they were to have put on a performance, but find that the hotel has burned down. Installing his flock instead at a little lodging house, Menjou discovers a marvelously gifted amateur ice skater in the person of beautiful little Greta, the inn-keeper's daughter (Sonja Henie), who is being trained by her father (Jean Hersholt) to win the Olympic figure skating championship, which he once held, but which was taken from him on false charges of professionalism.

Carol Naish, Paul Stanton and Oscar Apfel.

Matching wit and courage with a gang of international spies, the American flyers will have your heart in your throat, in this most gripping, pounding, racing sky story. Men of cold courage and ruthless daring in merciless combat. A boy in the flush of first love, facing an agonizing death. A girl reaching him thru a thousand miles of thin air to help save him. Audiences will sit tense and limp by turns, to rise and cheer the lashing finish.

In an entirely different mood was filmed "Dangerous Number," second feature on this program, and which has Robert Young, Ann Sothern and Reginald Owen in the leading roles; and which came from the successful Metro Goldwyn Mayer studios. Young is a young silk manufacturer, who interrupts a wedding to escape with the bride himself. She is not unwilling and complications begin. Its crammed with acrobats, police pursuits, hold-ups... but it's all for fun's sake... and wait until you see that disappearing silk dress gag.

'The Garden of Allah'

Filed in Technicolor

For his second independent effort, David O. Selznick, the brilliant young producer who last season produced "Little Lord Fauntleroy" has gone into the technicolor field. The result is a truly breath-taking production, "The Garden of Allah," co-starring Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer, that magically catches the mystic, romantic atmosphere of the desert that pervades the novel.

The use of technicolor miraculously transforms both stars into new and more exciting personalities, and the fair beauty of Dietrich provides a perfect foil for the dark-eyed handsomeness of Boyer. Truly you have never seen the exotic Marlene until you see her in technicolor! She is dazzling in the newly-revealed glory of golden hair, blue eyes and flawless creamy complexion.

The immortal romance of a man and a woman from different worlds who found a great love under the spell of the desert moon offers both stars roles that are made to order for them and both give the best performance of their careers. Marlene Dietrich is divinely feminine and alluring as Domini Enfiladen, the lovely heroine of Hichens' novel, the European girl who, at the death of the father to whom she has devoted several years of her life, goes to Beni-Mora, the parish of the kindly Father Roubier in the Algerian desert, seeking a new life.

Here she meets the strange, brooding handsome Boris Androvsky, who is obviously disturbed by a deep secret sorrow.

Pulitzer Prize Play Pictured on Screen

The annual prize provided by the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, noted newspaper publisher, for the perpetuation and advancement of American drama, has come to be known, since its inception in 1918, as a definite mark of quality. This despite the storm of protest from various quarters that has occasionally accompanied the award.

One of the outstanding winners of the Pulitzer Prize was George Kelly's drama, "Craig's Wife," which opened at the Morosco Theatre in New York City on Oct. 12, 1925, and remained for the sensational run of 360 performances.

'THE PLAINSMEN' OPENS TODAY

The most colorful period in American history, the decade which witnessed the opening of the West, is brought to vibrant life again in "THE PLAINSMAN," an outstanding motion picture which started a five-day engagement at the Rio theatre today.

Conceived and produced on a lavish scale, "The Plainsman" deals with the ten years which followed the civil war and tells of the epic struggle and heroism of the frontier people. A tender love story built around the famous frontier characters, "Wild Bill" Hickok and "Calamity Jane," played by Gary Cooper and beautiful Jean Arthur, furnishes the romance.

Western Movie Is At Elite Theater

"Code of the Range" Stars Charles Starrett for Two Days

Charles Starrett, popular western star, is at the Elite theatre today and Sunday in his exciting new western drama, "Code of the Range," a Columbia picture. The film is based on the famous story by Peter B. Kyne, adapted to the screen by Ford Beebe.

Starrett, handsome young buckaroo who handles his heroic role as capably as he tosses a lariat or unsolsters a six-gun, gives his usual excellent performance. Starrett is rapidly gaining a strong following among those whose pulses sing to the hoof-beating exploits of punchers and pintoes.

Miss Blake, a newcomer to the screen, is an ideal western girl, a lovely film sweetheart for the hero. "Code of the Range" is Miss Blake's first picture. The fact that she was given a leading role, and that she handled it so well, indicates that the young woman is really going places in the picture profession.

The story, with never a dull moment, concerns a threatened war on the range when a sheepgrower threatens to bring in his flock. The cattlemen arm to prevent this. Starrett, though a cattle rancher, is so strong for fair play that he takes the woolman's side. There's plenty of action and, it may be hinted, everything turns out right in the happy ending.

KAY FRANCIS STARS IN NEW PICTURE

"Give Me Your Heart," a dynamic drama revealing the human emotions of love, passion, hate and sacrifice, comes to the Elite Theatre for 3 days starting next Wednesday, with Kay Francis in the stellar role. She is supported by an exceptionally strong cast which includes George Brent, Roland Young, Patric Knowles, Henry Stephenson, Frieda Inescort, Helen Flint, Halliwell Hobbes, Zeffie Tilbury and Elspeth Dudgeon. The picture, a Cosmopolitan production released by Warner Bros., is based on the smashing stage hit, "Sweet Aloys" by Jay Mallory. The plot of the play is ultra-modern and startlingly daring, and although frank in treatment, is handled with the utmost good taste.

Interest in Birds Bound To Slacken in Cold Weather

BY CLARA HUSSONG

No matter how enthusiastic a bird lover may be in the pursuit of his hobby, during the coldest month his interest is bound to slacken. Balmey days lure him out for long walks and he is often rewarded by sights of rare birds but when the temperature drops to zero and below and when snow lies deep in his favorite "hunting grounds" it requires more backbone than most of us possess to venture pearance which you had never noticed while he was on the wing. If there is a museum in your home town or in some nearby town you are quite certain to find a collection of birds there. Private collections are sometimes open for public inspection although many private ones, consist mainly of the larger water and game birds.

Inspected Museum Collection Recently a group of us inspected the mounted bird collection owned by the Neville Public Museum in Green Bay. We were informed that the 75 birds in the group represented species which occurred in this and neighboring vicinities, either as permanent or seasonal residents, or accidental visitors and migrants. Nearly every class of birds was represented and in some cases an entire family group could be seen. All of our resident thrushes, that is, the robin, bluebird, hermit, wood and veery or Wilson's thrush were shown. Of the two migrant thrushes, the olive-backed and gray-checked, the latter bird was also included in the group, much to my satisfaction as I have always had trouble in telling the two apart.

If you are interested in thrushes and have never seen these two migrants, watch for them next spring. I find that for the years 1934 and 1935 I saw them first on May 13. Last year I have the olive-backed recorded as occurring May 8 and the gray-checked a few days later.

Backs Are Olive Grey
They resemble the hermit thrush in size. Their backs are entirely olive-grey and their breasts are duller than those of either the hermit or wood thrush while the speckles are clustered at the throat and upper breast. The differences between the two migrants is this: The olive-backed has a conspicuous buff eye ring and buff cheeks while the gray-checked lives up to its name besides having no eye-ring. At a distance they cannot be told apart and I must admit that my recordings may not be strictly accurate as I may have mistaken one for the other.

One of the mounted birds whose unusual appearance drew forth a great deal of comment was the pileated woodpecker. This large bird with its flaming crest is an inhabitant of the heavily-forested parts of Wisconsin. Recently I have been told that a pair of them have been seen for the past few winters in a wooded area west of White Poto lake in Marinette county. I am hoping to visit the place within the next few weeks and shall of course do my best to get a sight of "Cock-of-the-north."

Several in the group studying these mounted birds had never seen a snowflake, or snow bunting and were glad of the opportunity to get a "close-up" of this bird. Snowflakes usually come in large flocks, on "the wings of a storm." Next time a snow storm arrives drive out to the edge of town to a flat meadow. You may see them drift and swirl about, like the real snowflakes for which they were named. In flight they appear almost entirely white but this mounted specimen showed us the broken spots of rusty brown on the back and head.

Has Coat of Umber Brown
One of the most interesting things we noticed was the number of birds having bright red eyes. The re-eyed vireo's jewel-like eye was expected and most of us knew that the black-billed cuckoo, the night heron and the goshawk had red eyes. But the towhee's red eyes were a surprise to me as well as to several others. Both a female and a male specimen were included and it was interesting to note the difference in color of the two sexes. Towhees are members of the finch group which seems to be divided into two classes as to coloration. In the dull-colored class, namely, the various sparrows, there is little difference between the coloration of the two sexes. In the bright-colored group, grosbeaks, indies, bunting, goldfinches, purple finches and others the male wears a much brighter plumage than his mate. The female towhee, or chewink, is favored by having a coat of beautiful umber brown in place of the black of her mate. This unusual coloring will lead you to believe that she is an entirely different species of bird. Towhees are among our more or less common summer residents, nesting in swampy woods and thickets near town.

Salary Adjustments
Salary adjustments of city officials and employees of the various departments will be discussed at an informal meeting of the common council to be called by Mayor Goodland in the near future. Salary adjustments were asked in December by members of the fire and police departments and some employees at the city hall.

'MELLERDRAMMER' TO FEATURE LITTLE THEATER PARTY

Bill Dornaus, Neenah, plays the part of Jack Logan, the hero, and the cringing villain in the tall millinery, Hilton Hayes, is played by Ken Ratz. At the extreme left, Granny Perkins in the person of Marie Doherty, peer over her spectacles as the "goings-on" and Little Nell, the heroine, played by Adelaide Vanden Akker, raises her hands in either astonishment or delight at the scene. At the right, Cecille Haag as Vera Carleton, the city gal, steps back in alarm at the display of such violence, and Elva Doris Moore as Lolly Wilkins, the village gossip, wrings her hands but leans nearer so as not to miss any of the excitement. NUTRITIA MILK CONTEST!

Written by Mrs. Ervin J. Bogan 1122 W. Commercial St., Appleton

Why I Like Nutritia Milk Better

Nutritia Milk makes happier healthy families. Any milk is good for you; but Nutritia Milk is better. It is the one food everyone should want to use for a better physical body, for one to become more active and really live.

Nutritia Milk produces nourishment, every drop is uniformly rich; it contains the same amount of butter fat as any other milk; but that butter fat is evenly distributed throughout the entire bottle. It is even better and is more palatable. It is better for you in every way. It is much easier to digest than any other kind of milk. It is perfectly pasteurized for your protection. Nutritia cream-like milk is best for cereals.

Many children who detest other forms of milk like this creamy Nutritia flavor. I cannot begin to tell you all of its good points, but I do say, my daughter's health has greatly improved since she began to drink this fine, wholesome food. This perfect, picture of health, in our home, alone, repays me for the small sum each bottle of Nutritia Milk costs me. I would rather see one fine, healthy, active child, than all the slim, slender, undernourished, celluloid screen stars you could show me.

Feed the body well and it will repay you many times over. It's like taking care of that old motor in your car. You don't like to see it stall, so you give it the best of care, the best gas, and oil to run well. Don't neglect your child's body or your own. Give it as good a treatment as you would your car. A growing child needs a well balanced diet and Nutritia Milk will certainly keep that child, going strong at forty, if you feed it properly at four. For that faster "pick-up" give your child Nutritia Milk for his or her afternoon lunch.

Therefore, I urge all mothers to accept this fine food for their family, for healthier and happier home life.

MRS. ERVIN J. BOGAN, 1122 W. Commercial St., Appleton, Wisconsin.

Shakespearean Plays Will Be Given by Globe Theater

"FOR the first time in my play-going life, I have heard and helped an audience roar with laughter at a Shakespearean play," Lloyd Lewis, dramatic critic of the Chicago Daily News and author of Civil War biographies, said in a review of the Old Globe theater plays given at the Chicago exposition.

The Old Globe players will come to Lawrence college chapel Saturday, Jan. 30, for matinee and evening performances.

"They seemed to have forgotten," wrote Lewis, "all the trappings, traditions and impediments which classicism has thrown around the Bard. They began to play Shakespeare as if they had never learned that he was an awesome and sacred man. They acted as if the playwright was just another George M. Cohan. And the net result was a performance as swift, pointed, shrewd and unforgettably funny as it had been written by Mr. Cohan."

"The Taming of the Shrew," which the Globe players will produce at Lawrence chapel at their matinee, was one of the chief plays of which Mr. Lewis's words might have been spoken. In it the Globe players were at their best. And, although Lloyd Lewis could hardly have spoken in the same vein of their production of Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus," which will be the other offering at their local matinee performance, he could have spoken praise just as high though of a different kind.

The Globe theater's evening performance will bring "Hamlet" to the local footlights for the first time in many years. The things that the Globe theater players do with Shakespearean tragedy are just as amazing as what they do with comedy.

Sale of tickets for the local performances has begun at Belling's pharmacy, E. College avenue. Special rates for school-children's tickets can be obtained upon request of teachers. Mail orders will be filled by writing direct to Lawrence College theater, Appleton.

FEMININE STAR
 Olga Rosenova, above, will appear with the Old Globe theater players when they appear at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Saturday, Jan. 30, in three plays. She is one of the feminine stars of the company.

Their separate careers illustrate the lure of distant horizons. Baker was born in Evansville, Ind., and early headed east. Towne is a native New Yorker, who early headed west.

Towne wanted excitement and got it as a cowboy and lumberjack in the Pacific northwest. He came to Hollywood when there were still "title writers" (for silent films) but by the time he was 26 he had 20 original screen stories on his credit list.

Baker finished high school in Brooklyn, became a cartoonist and reporter and editorial worker in New York before turning scenario writer. He became story editor in short order, and when the Warners absorbed Vitaphone they brought him west as scenario chief.

Aud thus did fate dovetail their stories. Towne now was a Warner writer, which gave Baker an opportunity to fire Towne. Baker expects opportunity to knock twice.

And so, sometime later—this being Hollywood where anything can happen—Towne and Baker became a team. Now Towne is reputed to get his exercise by pacing the floor and screaming at Baker, who keeps fit by playing golf. Their vacations are spent traveling in opposite directions—a custom prevalent among writing teams, even those whose halves swear at and by each other.

Leo Carrillo is opening a "Mexican street," with shops, music, and food, in the heart of Hollywood—Garbo, moving into the Neil Hamilton house recently vacated by Jeanette MacDonald, lost no time in erecting her customary high white fence about the establishment—The pet monkey of Doris Dudley, who lives next door, so far is the only invader of Greta's privacy. The Hamiltons are still in England.

Hugh Herbert is spiking the canard that he has a swimming pool in his living room. It's only a gold-fish pond, he insists.

Lent Is Season Of Challenge, Says Bishop Epp

100 Ministers and Laymen At Evangelical Conference

Neenah—The Lenten season is a season of challenge to the church—a challenge to larger loyalty to Jesus Christ on the part of the people of the church, the Rev. G. E. Epp, D. D., bishop of the central area of the Evangelical church, told the 100 ministers and laymen assembled at the pre-lenten conference of Appleton district, Wisconsin conference of the Evangelical church which was held Friday at the Neenah Evangelical church. The Rev. Carl Zietlow, pastor, was the host. Representatives from Seymour, Ripon, Oshkosh, Two Rivers, Reedsville, Appleton, Gillett, Clintonville and Bondell attended.

"The unconscious cry of a needy world must be reckoned with and Christ is the answer to that cry," said Bishop Epp. "The minister is the spiritual guide and director for any forward advances in the church but many people seem to be unaware of his existence."

"The minister is the ambassador of Christ, the man who is called to be a 'fisher of men.' It is he who, more than any other professional man, has the privilege of living his life into that of the people for building a better world. To be a success, he must have individual loyalty to his task. He must keep himself usefully occupied to avoid falling into careless habits."

"Ministers and laymen must face the task of leadership together and our task must be: 'I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me.'"

The Rev. C. A. Bender, superintendent of the Madison and Milwaukee districts, presented a conference lenten program to guide the churches in building up an effective program for the cultural and spiritual life of the church. In his program, he suggested the subject for the lenten program be "Christian Vitality" with a subtitle, "The manifestation of a religion that makes a difference."

The first Sunday's sermon topic during Lent, could be "The Prodigal World," it was suggested; the topic for the second Sunday, "Preeminence of Christ in Meeting Human Needs in Order to Make Life More Effective," the topic for the third Sunday, "Vital Beginnings" with the fourth Sunday "Christian Growth and Spiritual Nature. The evidence of Christ's vitality should manifest itself in 'Vicarious Living' which could be the topic for the Palm Sunday services. "Immortal Life" should be the Easter Sunday topic.

Speaker Says Wisconsin Artists and Writers Have Big Opportunity in State

Neenah—Declaring that the finest thing art can do for people is to put into their minds the beauty that can be saved or recreated in the state, Dr. Jennie Turner, teacher-trainer for the state board of vocational education, Madison, told members of the Economics Club of Menasha and Neenah Friday afternoon that words and colors paint the picture of Wisconsin but that as yet, Wisconsin artists and writers have only contributed a small portion of what they could contribute.

"Years ago painting was the most useful art from a practical business point of view," said Dr. Turner, "but with the advent of color photography, painting had to develop another use with the result that impressionistic painting came into prominence."

Show Pictures
Dr. Turner displayed pictures of murals done by Francis Scott Braddock, Appleton, and several paintings of Howard Thomas and George O. Young, Milwaukee; Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Bonnie Ford of Madison; Crant Wood, Iowa; Birchfield of Ohio and Doris Lee, Layton Art School student; John W. Norton, Chicago, who did the murals at Belmont college, Armand Hansen, Milwaukee; Van Brunt, Horicon, and Henry Bernard.

"I think of art as a good expression of some worthwhile idea for one of several purposes: either enjoyment, ability to see something better or to arouse an emotion. It is true that much of art and literature hasn't yet reached the propaganda stage in Wisconsin although the exception to this statement is, Art Young, Monroe cartoonist, but he leans over backward. His propaganda is rather bitter."

Various Themes
Dr. Turner discussed woodland themes, farm themes, city and village themes, homes, public buildings and school houses in painting and showed pictures that portrayed the progress or deterioration in these fields.

"In the field of literature the first great theme" said Dr. Turner "in Wisconsin literature was the Indians. One of the finest things in drama is William Ellery Leonard's 'Glory of the Morning.' John Muir and Hamland Garland the former writing with less bitterness than the latter interpreted the early beauty of Wisconsin and I believe that 'My Boyhood and Youth' should be a part of ever child's reading life."

Dr. Turner read poetry of Elizabeth Robinson, William McCaffray, Alice Phelps Rider and Sam Ryan and discussed some of the writings of Ernie Meyer, former Milwaukeean and at one time columnist for the Capital Times.

Discuss Biography
Rasmus Anderson's biography and Zora Gale's short stories were also discussed and commended by Dr. Turner as fine contributions to literature.

Dr. Turner also said that she hoped that some day paintings or color photographs of Wisconsin barns, woodlands, roads and school houses could be put into readers for children in the grades in order that they might not lose Wisconsin's beauty of yesterday.

Mrs. L. E. Lindquist sang two selections, "Stars in My Eyes" and "Make-Believe" during the program. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruby Hart.

Former Policeman Bound Over After Hearing in Court

Hughes Denies Motion for Dismissal of Charges Against Martell

Menasha — Joseph Martell, former Menasha police sergeant, charged with being an accessory before the fact in the alleged theft of 41 slot machines from a store room here on Nov. 13, was bound over to plead to an information by Judge Henry P. Hughes in municipal court at Oshkosh when preliminary hearing was conducted this morning.

Melvin Crowley, Menasha, representing the defense, asked for a dismissal but the motion was denied.

Martell was arrested two weeks ago upon complaint of Raymond Kieffer, Schofield, owner of the machines, and was arraigned Wednesday, Jan. 6.

Kieffer testified upon direct examination by Lewis Magnusen, district attorney, that he was approached at Schofield by a person known as Ed Burns who said he had a setup for about 40 or 50 slot machines in a certain town. Burns, Kieffer said, claimed he could fix it and that it would cost $1.50 a week for each machine.

Arranged Meeting

Burns offered to take Kieffer to the city on Nov. 6 and arranged for a meeting at a hotel in Appleton on Nov. 7. Kieffer testified that he and his father, Ed Burns, and the hotel and then went to the Valley Inn, Neenah, where they were introduced to a man representing himself as the Menasha chief of police. This person asked Kieffer if he understood the setup.

When told that they "just came from seeing Alex and are going to run slots in the city," Kieffer said the night sergeant replied, "If it's O.K. with Alex, it's O.K. with me."

Makes Purchase

Forty-one slot machines were purchased in Chicago on Nov. 9 and they arrived in Menasha on Nov. 12. Kieffer stated, The machines, he said, were stored in the Pankratz warehouse a short distance from the police station. They were loaded with about $350 in nickels and times and arrangements were made at the police station for a man to look after them on the night of Nov. 12. Kieffer said that he and Burns invited him to a party at Green Bay. Burns disappeared several times during the party and then failed to return. Gerald Coe, mechanic for Kieffer, was with him when the machines were loaded and arrangements for a man to watch them made, Kieffer said.

Is Suspicious

Becoming suspicious, Kieffer said he returned to the warehouse in Menasha and found the machines gone. He immediately went to the police station asked what was up and claimed a "double-cross." He returned to the warehouse on Nov. 4 and called the chief of police, he said.

Alex Slomski, chief of police, said upon direct examination that Joseph Martell was on duty from 9:30 each night until 7 o'clock in the morning from Nov. 5 to 12.

Upon cross examination Slomski testified Martell had mentioned to him that a man named Burns said he intended to open a saloon in the city.

Carl Resch Leads St. Mary in Win Over Alumni, 22-19

Scores Five Points, in Last Five Minutes of Play, For Victory

Menasha — Carl Resch scored five points in the final minutes of play for St. Mary to pull a nip and tuck battle between St. Mary High school and the Alumni out of the fire and won the ball game 22 and 19 last night at St. Mary gymnasium.

After St. Mary piled up a 6 to 3 lead to end the first quarter, the Alumni cagers came to life and led at the half 9 to 8. The Miller men slipped into a one-point lead again in the third quarter and led at the end 16-13. Resch flashed into the limelight with a field goal making the count 17 for his team after Boronz had dropped a free throw. He again counted on a gift toss and the Alumni retaliated with three buckets in a row to make the score 20 and 19.

With only seconds to go, Resch flashed into the open and dribbled to his last basket for a safe margin before the final whistle. Boronz and Spalding went out of the game in the last stanza on personal fouls. The St. Mary squad played a tight ball against an aggregation of experienced alumni cagers who showed class on the floor but failed to click on tries for goals.

Schuerer and Reischel counted two buckets each for the Alumni and Knoll played a great defensive game and tallied three gift tosses and a field goal. Coopman stopped many St. Mary drives by being constantly on the alert for free balls.

INFLUX FROM MADRID

The Valencians welcomed the government when it changed its headquarters and extended a hand when it was decided to evacuate women and children from Madrid. But resentment is now being heard, in many quarters over the increasing numbers of able-bodied adriens who are pouring into a city.

SECOND SEMESTER

Wisconsin Has Low Death Rate From Tuberculosis

Madison—With a tuberculosis death rate of 36.3 per 100,000 population, Wisconsin ranks twelfth among the states in low mortality from this cause, according to a federal report received today by the state board of health.

States having lower death rates from this once uncontrolled disease, on the basis of official 1935 records, are Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah and Wyoming, the national survey shows.

Tuberculosis lays a heavy hand on both Indian and Negro elements of the American population, according to Dr. H. M. Guilford, state epidemiologist, and for this reason heavy Negro population and southern states with large Indian population suffer unduly in a comparison of this nature. Certain states are mecca for advanced cases of tuberculosis, which results in their showing a recorded death rate far higher than the resident death rate from the disease, he pointed out.

Indians and Negroes each have a Wisconsin population of approximately 10,000. Combined, they form but two-thirds of one per cent of the entire state population. In 1935, despite their small number, these two races claimed no less than six percent of the 1,056 persons who died from tuberculosis in Wisconsin, Dr. Guilford cited.

BANKING IN JERUSALEM

Jerusalem—(P)—Bank depositors in Jerusalem must have an accurate watch and an intimate knowledge of three calendars.

Otherwise they hasten to the bank, confident of arriving between the hours of 9 and 12, only to find the doors locked and a sign reading "closed for Maulel el Nebi."

If the holiday is not Maulel el Nebi, which is the birthday of the Prophet Mohammed, it is likely to be Whit Monday, Curban Bairam (Mohammedan feast of sacrifice), First Day of Pessach (Jewish Passover), or the birthday of King George VI.

In fact the clerks are given 31 public holidays in addition to Sundays. Six of the holidays, however, fall on Sunday anyhow, so the net gain in days off is only 26.

Pegler Feels Washington Has Job Seeing Realities

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington—When I am in a theater and the play becomes too exciting, I look at my watch which reminds me that it is 10:15 and that pretty soon we will all get up and walk out while back of the curtain the dead will rise and the lovers of the plot will wash up and start for their respective homes without so much as a parting hand-squeeze in the alley.

When I am in Washington, I try to bear in mind that out through the country there are all those millions of poor people of whom Mr. Roosevelt speaks. But, as in the theater I am often deceived by the eye and ear. I forget that there are poor or that there is any world beyond the border of the District of Columbia.

It takes an effort which is almost physical to recall that poverty and desperation exist elsewhere and that these people were sent here ostensibly to rescue the stricken.

I do not mean to belittle the intentions or the efforts of earnest public men or the objectives of the administration but Washington is a gay city and the life of the place gives no outward sign of heartache or alarm for the future. Probably there is no other city in the world with an equal number of full dress suits per capita or striped pants or dinner jackets.

These are more a habit than genuine swank for a national capital anywhere always feels required to put on a little bit of dog as a matter of national pride to impress the foreign diplomats.

The subordinate ranks are influenced by this so parties which in other cities would be come-as-you-are become formal in Washington. At the approach of an inauguration the window dressers in some of the big stores lay out enticing displays of dude clothes, including the plug hat which places an emphasis on interest far from the plight of the under-privileged.

Without a Conclusion

I am not contending that a man in evening clothes is necessarily any less conscientious in his efforts than a man in overalls. It is merely that so much festivity and dressing and such obvious comfort among the rescue squad create an appearance of indifference which may be entirely false. Possibly many an honest heart beats beneath the hard-boiled shirt and the thoughts of men and women who are sipping scotch and pretending to be gay may really be far from Washington in the hovels of the sidewalk farmers or the exploited textile hands.

Still it would be foolish to pretend that one and all are here to serve mankind because everybody knows of people who were taken into the administration in jobs far above the subsistence level merely because they were friends or relatives of deserving Democrats, and who have no interest but to keep those jobs.

Don't Know How Many Just Want To Escape Cold

This is the dole de luxe and nobody can even estimate how many thousands have crowded into the rooms of a vast, jerry-built government just to get out of the cold themselves.

People nowadays seldom speak of the final cost in dollars of Mr. Roosevelt's program. Four years ago the mention of a billion or four billion dollars could give the country a jolt but money, as the government handles it, has lost reality. After all the spending of the first four years Mr. Roosevelt comes before the country again to say that one-third of the nation still is ill-housed, ill-nourished and ill-clad.

Instead of speaking in billions of dollars now, he speaks of a great nation on a great continent, blessed with great wealth of natural resources. He may know best and it may be better to distribute opportunity and material comfort in great wholesale projects without regard to the value or meaning of money as such.

Maybe Our Capital Is Badly Located Now

I am afraid the capital is badly situated and should be in Terre Haute or St. Joe, Missouri, which would put it far from New York and give the government more reality to the country again. In such surroundings the government, itself, would be much closer to the reality of the poverty which Mr. Roosevelt mentions and I doubt that the government people would have the same feeling as now that they live in a walled city which must go on in comfort and — extravagance — though the rest of the country crumbles from under.

Nowhere else but in Washington is it possible to conceive the vast number of politicians and little political coat-holders who live well and, in many cases become rich off the very people whom Mr. Roosevelt desires to save. They live not only here but everywhere in the land but at inauguration time they come to the capital in droves, well-dressed, well-fed and well-heeled to see to their political interests and take part in festivities which drown out all thought of distress.

I wonder if Washington, the capital, the town, ever looks at its watch to recall reality and remember that the poor are not merely a political phrase.

BY ALVIN BRAULT
NEW LONDON—A "hot" Menasha team took a sloppy New London quintet into camp, 40 to 25, in a conference game at the Washington High school gym here last night. The win puts Menasha ahead in the standings and New London in the class with Clintonville with hopes for an honor place very dim.

The sore spot in New London's game was the absence of Post, center, who was confined to his home yesterday morning because another member of the family was found to have scarlet fever. Coach Delbert Stacy worked all week on plays which depended a lot on the able center and his loss was felt keenly, especially his height as the taller Menasha boys controlled the ball most of the time.

The New London aggregation failed to catch on all evening and opportunities galore slipped past them and the ball never seemed to find the hoop. They led in the first quarter as Menasha played the same brand in that period.

Menasha trailed, 0 to 8, at the end of the first quarter but new spirit and a sense of victory spurred them on to six baskets in the second period to gain a 20 to 15 lead at the end of the half and 31 to 18 at the end of the third period. They played too fast for New London the last three quarters and the boys got mixed up often. Menasha was called on 12 fouls to 7 for the New London squad.

Wideman, Menasha forward, and Godhardt, red-headed guard, did the heavy scoring for the invaders the former scoring four buckets and two free throws and the latter three of each.

Denning, New London guard, played hard for his club and scored most heavily on charity shots with five out of six and two baskets. Meshnick, pinch-hitting for Yost, showed well and scored two buckets and two gift shots. Nader was unable to get off any one-handed tosses against his overreaching opponent when he used two hands he muffed but played a fine defensive game.

Fahrenkrug, Menasha center, was lost to the Jays in the second half of the game when he was knocked backwards to the floor on the tip-off which opened the half and injured the lower end of his spinal column. The bone had been fractured previously.

Viking Reserves Hold Scrimmage

Regulars Get Day's Rest; Team Meets Lake Forest There Monday

Lawrence college basketball players who saw only a few minutes' action against Carroll the other evening, or who saw no action, practiced yesterday afternoon against a team composed of alumni and town cagers. The five members of the squad who played almost all the 40 minutes to beat the Pioneers, 26 to 21, were excused from drill but will report Saturday afternoon for a limbering up workout and a little basket shooting.

The next engagement for the Vikings will be Monday evening at Lake Forest, a non-conference game. Lawrence defeated the Foresters here in the first major game of the season. The Vikes are favored to cop although they may have trouble in the Lake Forest gymnasium which isn't much larger than the Beloit court.

After the Lake Forest game drills will be rather irregular until after semester examinations are out of the way. The first weekend in February Lawrence makes a trip to Monmouth and Knox for Midwest conference games.

Hesselman Leads Rockets With Four Buckets and Two Free Throws

BY DICK DAVIS
NEENAH—Neenah sailed away another Northeastern Wisconsin conference victory by defeating Clintonville, 33-26, there last evening. The regulars piled up a 21-4 lead early in the second quarter by virtue of their height advantage and the reserves played the rest of the game.

Jack Hesselman, Rocket center, led the squad with four buckets and two free throws for a 10-point total while Schultz, guard, chalked up four buckets and one free throw. Six buckets and two charity tosses were credited to Martin, Clintonville guard.

Neenah controlled the ball from the opening whistle and was ahead, 13-4, at the end of the first quarter. The squad picked up six more points in the second period against one for the Trunkers. Though not as smooth as the first team, the reserves lead, 24-13, at the end of the third quarter.

Lou Little Will Quit Football Rules Group

New York (AP)—Lou Little is resigning the chairmanship of the American Football Coaches' Rules committee with the advice to let the controversial pass interference rule alone for the time being.

Instead of a change in the currently most-disputed ruling on the books, Columbia's jovial coach suggests sharper interpretation by officials, "with fuller recognition of the rights of the defensive team to the ball, as well as protection for the offensive receivers."

"This is my personal viewpoint," he explained, "but I believe it represents generally what the coaches feel in seeking thorough but also fair and reasonable interpretation of the rules."

Little's announcement of his resignation as chairman of the coaches' rules committee, which he helped organize and has headed since its inception four years ago, came as a surprise. Harry Kipke, Michigan coach and president of the American Football coaches association, named Ray Morrison of Vanderbilt to preside at the meeting Feb. 6 at which coaches will review suggested changes in the grid-iron law.

Whitewater, which led 22 to 15 at the half, held an edge throughout the game. Stevens Point came back fast in the closing minutes. Five Whitewater players and three Stevens Point men left the game on fouls.

Chaff'n Chatter

IF YOU'RE a lover of the great outdoors and can stand temperatures in the region of the zero mark Sunday should offer an opportunity for getting out and taking a little exercise and watching others do most of the taking.

In other words there are two sports events scheduled for tomorrow, a skating tournament at Jones park and the ski tournament at New London. The Jones park program is a WPA recreational project and is open to skaters in the entire county. Recent reports were that the entry list showed a lot of pretty fair talent in the men's and girls' senior, junior and intermediate classes. The winners will be eligible for a zone meet here next week.

The ski meet at New London promises to be the best in years, officers of the New London club say. They have built a new slide and hill during the last several months and have secured some of the best Class A, B and C riders in the middle west.

The skating meet will start at 2 o'clock and the ski riding at 1:30.

Information on the coming high school basketball tournaments isn't any too plentiful just at the moment but by way of passing we might mention a few things. This year the Class B and C tournaments will be held in greater numbers. The result is that the district winners will have to compete in regional meets to enter the state tournament at Madison.

For instance, there will be Class C meets at Kimberly, Marion, Peshigo and Sturgeon Bay in this section of the state. There also will be a Class B meet at Kaukauna and another at Oconto and probably several other cities in this section.

Following the district meets the winners of the four above named Class C meets and certain Class B meets will gather at New London for a regional elimination tournament with the victors destined to go to Madison.

All of which means that March will be almost a continuous round of tournaments.

In keeping with its desire to expand minor sports programs, Lawrence college authorities are attempting to arrange several swimming meets and a play-day or two.

One of the swimming meets will be with Oberlin college, down Ohio way, and will be a telegraphic meet. Oberlin in arranging several such contests and as they usually work out well in track probably will be successful in swimming. Lawrence also will splash with the Bay Squires and at the Bay.

The playday program is being arranged with Milwaukee Teachers and the University of Wisconsin Extension division at Milwaukee. The schools will send various sports teams here for matches and contests. Vike authorities also are trying to coax Ripon college wrestlers into a tug and grunt session.

Possibilities of a city bowling championship meet here this winter are seen in the request of Hilbert J. Weller, of the Industrial Bowling league, for information on such meets from Billy Sixty of the Milwaukee Journal. Weller recently wrote "Get information on how the Milwaukee city championship is run, whether on a point basis or straight elimination."

'Sgood idea, Kelly.

About the happiest guys in six states Thursday night and yesterday were the members of the Lawrence college basketball squad over their victory over Carroll college. And they should be. It's a doggone long time since Lawrence has topped Carroll and there's that football game last fall, too. Needless to say the Vikes are pointing for another win over the Bears at the Jones park rink in a big score. When Jim Knoblauch graduates next month the Vikes figure Carroll won't have much of anything left and are they ever going to get revenge!

Coach Denney had a lot of praise for the entire squad yesterday because of the way it came back after the Beloit flaccid at the Jones park rink in conjunction with a WPA county speed tournament featuring skaters from Appleton, Kaukauna and Little Chute. The Merchants lost a 11 to 3 decision to Lac but will be bucking competition in their own class when they meet the Green Bay team.

The events will show in the county zone meet to be held at Jones park on Sunday, Jan. 31.

The rink is in good shape and workmen will put the finishing touches to the surface tonight when they add another coating of ice. The course will be laid out Sunday morning and no skaters will be allowed on the ice before the meet. Officials and skaters will be the only persons permitted on the ice when the meet gets underway.

Some of the skaters who have entered the meet and their age classes are: Kaukauna—R. Kiel 15, R. Stephens 16, Rosemary Puth 16, Valois Kalupa 15, Lorrain Sager 17, Leo Rabideau 24, George Note 17; Appleton—Orville Wonsner 33, Sonny Fitz 15, Elmer Coon 16, Mary Eggert 18, Ralph Schubert 15, Frank Derfus 14, Ken Priebe 24, Rose Mary Trettien 14; Little Chute—Richard De Bruin 18, Roman Van Hiel 17.

McKinley Junior High Teacher Five in Win
McKinley Junior High school faculty basketball team defeated the Beloit graders in a game played Friday afternoon, 35 to 18. The losers led at the half, 10 to 8. Nelson and Monteith led the teachers while Cotter paced the students.

Kimberly—The Green Bay Reformatory cagers defeated the Club basketball team, 30 to 27, at the reformatory Thursday evening. Although the Papermakers trailed most of the game they were out in front in the final quarter 27 to 23. Ken Kitchen, West guard, dropped in a free throw to put the Wildcats ahead again, but Simons again made a field goal to give East the lead. LITTLE CHUTE—Pulaski high defeated St. John Catholic high here last night in a non-conference game by an 18 to 16 score. Pulaski held the St. John squad scoreless in the last period and scored eight points to win the decision. St. John counted only two free throws in ten tries while the Pulaski team tallied four out of seven charity tosses.

Pulaski took a 5 to 4 lead in the first quarter with the Gajewski brothers leading the scoring. Malchieski joined in the tallying in the second period and Pulaski led 10 to 8 at halftime. St. John scored 10 points while holding the Pulaski five scoreless in the third period, but the invaders retaliated with a defense that kept the St. John marksmen bottled up and left the Chuters without a point in the final quarter. Meanwhile the Pulaski squad tossed in three buckets and two free throws to take the victory.

Malchieski's third long shot from the center circle gave the invaders a margin in the final quarter and Gajewski was fouled while the Pulaski team was stalling to give the second point of margin. Van Hoof was the Little Chute luminary, tallying eight points on four field goals.

St. John high reserves counted a 22 to 13 win over the Pulaski Bee squad in the preliminary game. Van Asten scored ten points on four field goals and two free throws to lead the Little Chute scoring. Wings for Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS: Philip Page, young publisher of the Warrenton Courier, falls in love with his thoughtful society editor, Sally Warren. She is staying with wealthy Mary Morris, who pursues Philip despite his campaign against her property-owning father to improve living conditions. Giles Benton, a detective engaged by Morris, picks up a serapegoat for an arson charge McDonald, a discharged mill worker. Philip, believing McDonald innocent, is fighting to save him. Sally, suspecting Benton of further underhandedness, trails him to a nearby resort.

Chapter 36
A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER
I F Giles was at all perturbed over her presence of Hillcrest, Sally had to admit he concealed it well. He seemed delighted to see her and made haste to introduce his companion.
"May I present my old friend, Mrs. Picard?" he said smoothly. "She's spending a few days at Hillcrest on her way to Maine."
Sally was disappointed in Giles' companion. While they all chattered away about commonplaces, Sally examined Mrs. Picard for signs of deceit, but was forced to admit that she had never seen a less mysterious woman. Mrs. Picard was at least 40, well groomed and becomingly dressed. Her blond hair showed no traces of gray and her figure was youthful. She made herself agreeable and Bob was soon talking to her freely.
Watching Mrs. Picard as closely as Giles would let her, the woman's eyes were black and rather small. The contrast between the dark eyes and light hair made her appearance more attractive. They were very black and they were very brilliant that made them a little hard to look at.
"I'm giving the Morris family a little vacation," smiled Giles Benton. "I'm afraid I've over stayed my welcome in Warrenton."
"I'm sure Mr. Morris is glad to have you," said Sally primly. "He must find it very lonely in the house when Mrs. Morris is away."
"Let's get a boat and go out on the lake," suggested Bob. "They have them for rent. Would you like that, Sally?"
"I'd love it," said Sally. "Can we get a boat big enough for all four of us?"
"No use to try," said Giles. "Marty wouldn't go near a boat. She turns green at the very sight of water."
Sally's heart beat very fast. She hoped Giles would not notice the effect of the name he had used. So this was "Marty" of the telephone conversation, the woman Giles Benton had advised to say out of town, and whom he had told that "everything is all right." What part could this middle-aged, well dressed woman play in any of Giles Benton's schemes?
There was nothing for it but to ride in the boat Bob had secured, although Sally parted with Giles and Marty reluctantly. Now that she had found Marty, how was she to take the next step and find out why Marty was here?
A cool breeze blew across the lake and fanned Sally's cheeks. The shore they skirted was lovely and wooded. Timber grew to the very edge of the water, making a beautiful fringe of green around the lake. "Most of the land around here belongs to an estate that's never been settled," Bob was saying.

"That's why it's still pretty wild. Timber hasn't been cut and nobody lives on the place. I've been out in these woods to hunt."
"I don't like it over there," shivered Sally. "It looks as if there were really wild animals to shoot."
"The only animals I ever found were rabbits and squirrels, and a few birds," grinned Bob. "But just as you say--we'll head for the open water."
The Sullen Motorcyclist
It was late when they left Hillcrest, but Sally looked in vain for another glimpse of Giles Benton and Marty. A light rain had begun to fall and Sally and Bob opened the car to the fresh scent of the woods and meadows they were passing. A few miles from Hillcrest, Bob stopped the car with a sudden pressure of brakes that threw Sally forward in the seat, bruising her head against the windshield.
"I'm sorry," said Bob anxiously. "Did you get hurt, Sally?"
"I'm all right," Sally pressed a handkerchief against the aching spot on her forehead and peered out at the dark road.
"Hello," said a voice from the road. "How about lending a hand here?"
"It's the fellow we passed on the motorcycle," explained Bob. "He left his machine in the road and I came very near smashing it--him, too."
Sally watched while the man and Bob examined the machine. Evidently the man had had a fall, for his arm was bleeding a little and his clothes were dusty and torn. In a few minutes, Bob and the man came back to the car arguing.
"The only thing I can do for you is take you in to Warrenton," said Bob. "I haven't anything to fix it with."
"There won't be a station open this time of night," said the man querulously. "That town goes to bed when the chickens do."
"Sorry, old man," said Bob. "There's nothing else to do unless you hike it back to Hillcrest for help. That's about four miles--in the rain."
"I guess I can make it," said the man sullenly. "Drive on. I still got two legs."
"Fiendly sort," said Bob, as he started the car. Sally strained her eyes in the dark, trying to see more of the road and the strange man who had chosen to walk in the rain to Hillcrest.
"Perhaps we ought to have taken him to Hillcrest," said Sally, as the rain began to fall in a steady pour. "Didn't think of that," said Bob. "It won't take a moment to go back there. Poor devil will be wet to the skin."
Bob turned the car and they drove back to the spot where they had parted with the cyclist. He was nowhere in sight. They drove until they sighted the lights of Hillcrest, but they saw nothing of their man.
"That's funny," said Bob. "He must have got the machine fixed after all."
"But he was headed this way to begin with," argued Sally.
Bob laughed and headed the car for Warrenton.
"That's what you get when you try to be a good Samaritan," added Sally.
Her head throbbed with the bruise on her temple and she felt

Vital Cards Lose Guard When Defenders Discard

BY ELY CULBERTSON

It may be set down as a sound rule that the more discards the defenders are required to make the greater will be their difficulty in protecting vital cards. This is one of those self-evident propositions that escape the average player. Their memories are much too sievelike. They forget that when they are on defense they often have to squirm and fumble for a safe discard. Transposed to the declarer's position they cannot visualize that the present defenders may be in exactly the same spot. The declarer's triumph in today's hand resulted from his ability to visualize the difficulties of another player.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 heart Double Pass 2 no trump
Pass Pass Pass Pass

South's two no trump bid, in response to North's take-out double, was slightly shaded, but he was justified in thinking that the alternative of one no trump would be even more inexpensive. (How often we all have lamented that we cannot bid 1!)
West assumed from the bidding that both of the missing heart honors were in South's hand and, determined to protect his double trump position, opened the ten of clubs. Although declarer was morally certain that this lead was not from the queen he had nothing to lose by putting up dummy's jack. East, covered with the queen and declarer conceded the trick. East made the natural return of a heart. West took his ace and returned a low heart, driving out dummy's king. Four rounds of diamonds were cashed on the last of which declarer let go a low spade. West temporarily avoided embarrassment by chucking his club, but now, when the king and ace of clubs followed, West found himself in quite a dilemma. He let go one heart but, correctly analyzing that another heart discard, blanking his queen, would merely invite a heart lead from the declarer, who was marked with the spade king for a heart, while to blank his ace-jack of spades instead. But this was just

Those in Authority Over Young Not Always Perfect

BY ANGELO PATRI

Those in authority over children are not perfect human beings. Their feelings are not always under control; their hidden feelings are not always as silent as they appear. It has happened before now that a mother or a teacher, has expressed feelings quite the opposite to those they thought or hoped they felt.

I once knew a great lady, the mother of a boy, who, she fondly thought she had done well by. "I never struck him," said she. "I controlled him with my eye, my voice, my manner. Once when he had been naughty I had him sent to me in the library. I seated myself in a large armchair at the far end of the room. He knocked and I said, 'Come.' In my most majestic tone, he opened the door and stood hesitating. 'Come,' I commanded, and he came slowly, toward me down the long room.

"I indicated with my finger where he should stand, on a spot on the rug before me. 'Look at me,' I commanded, and he gave one look into my eyes and fell on his knees before me. No, I never had to beat him.

The fact that her only son was, at the time, in a hospital for mental illness did not seem to say anything to her. She thought she had done well. She did not know that a feeling that she had toward another member of her family was being worked out on this helpless boy.

When I hear mothers say, "I never spank my children," "I never allow my child to talk back to me," "My child could never dare tell me a lie," I am very uneasy. I fear the pride that may cover hidden hate, hidden fear, hidden pain. Far better cleanse the mind and the soul of such emotions, and be a bit less the perfect parent.

Beating children is horrible, but to my mind there is a marked difference between the person who beats a child and the one who loses all patience and strikes out in an-

Jersey Goes to The Sea

Wool jersey makes some of the smartest bathing suits for resort wear this year. This one is navy blue jersey embroidered in red and white sprigs and designed with a halter neck and flared shorts. A knotted cord belt with a white composition buckle gives it a trim waistline. The big red and white straw hat makes a good sunshade for lounging hours on the beach.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk

Not long ago I received a letter from the Bermuda Islands, written by my good friend, Mr. Eugene Conley. There are so many interesting things in the letter that I shall use most of our space today to give paragraphs of from it.

"Here comes a letter," writes Mr. Conley, "from a friend in the middle of the Atlantic, from the tropical paradise they call Bermuda. The Bermuda Islands were named in honor of their discoverer, a Spaniard named Bermudez. Spain wouldn't spend the money to start colonies here, so they passed into the possession of Great Britain.

"All the Bermuda Islands together have an area of only 19 square miles. I am staying on the largest one. There are no wells here—the roofs are built to catch as much rain as possible, and lime is used to purify the rain water for drinking.

"No automobiles (except a few government trucks) are allowed here. The most popular form of travel is by bicycle, with Victoria carriages a poor second.

"The Bermudians are the most northerly of all coral islands in the world. It is interesting to think they were formed by the 'skeletons' of little ocean animals which lived and died as the centuries passed.

"The population is about 30,000, of whom one-third are white settlers. Almost all the white residents are of British descent. At nearly all the hotels, the Union Jack flies on one side and the Stars and Stripes on the other.

"At the end of each evening's dances, the orchestras play a few bars of the 'Star Spangled Banner' and of 'God Save the King.' This is a Good Neighbor gesture since most of the visitors come from the United States.

"There are said to be no snakes on these islands, and this reminds me of good old Ireland. You remember I was born on St. Patrick's day.

"Bermuda is about straight east of Charleston, S. C., and is 670 miles from New York. The voyage from New York takes 42 hours on the larger steamers.

"Hamilton is the chief city. It is typically English. The shops close for lunch, and four o'clock tea is the fashion. When a mail steamer comes in, the natives and the visitors flock down to the dock to see whether they have any letters.

"Mr. Conley's letter makes me feel that it would be fine to receive letters from other readers of our column who travel to foreign places. If you should go on far travels, perhaps you will find time to send a letter to me.

Keep Cuticle Smooth With Oil in Winter

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Dark Circles Under Eyes

Mrs. A. H.: What to do about dark circles under the eyes when there is a party in the offing?

Well, on occasion it is permissible to camouflage them. Try using a fairly heavy foundation cream under the eyes. Then experiment with eye-shadow on the upper lid. If the shadows on the upper lid are deep enough and strategically placed you'll find the dark circles under the eyes less conspicuous. A touch of rouge under the eyes often makes shadows or circles or hollows less noticeable. However, all these artifices are, as stated above, emergency measures. Dark circles, unless they appear occasionally after a sleepless night or when one is indisposed or has temporarily strained the eyes, should not be treated lightly. They may indicate a systemic disturbance that should be corrected so that the dark circles may automatically go too. Make sure you are in good health, watch your diet, follow the health rules. If the circles or hollows persist see your physician.

Treat Cuticle to Olive Oil in Winter

G. B. writes: Little habits often do go a long way. I used to have a lot of trouble with ragged cuticle during the winter months. This year I decided to use warm olive oil regularly every night. At first I would soak the nails for a few minutes and follow up by tying a bit of oil soaked cotton around each nail overnight. Now I merely use the oil on a wad of cotton twice a week and push back the cuticle. It is a smooth, fine line, and does not need any cutting or trimming for almost two months and my manicures seem to "keep" for weeks. I thought other readers would be interested to know.

Leg Exercise

Gilda: I agree with you that the shorter skirts sponsored by Paris have brought ankles and calves out into the limelight and that legwork should be kept up the whole year 'round. Walking is a splendid all-around exercise and fine for keeping the legs in trim. The famous bicycle exercise is excellent too. Rising on toes and squatting on calves is another good one. The Russian Dance step if you are a past master will make for truly beautiful legs. I have a bulletin called "Beautiful Legs—Always in Vogue" which I should like to send you. It outlines several splendid leg exercises. If you wish it, please repeat your question and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Electrolysis by Specialists Only

Mr. E. M. Yee: I sincerely agree that electrolysis is such an important and delicate work that it should be entrusted to a specialist only . . . to a physician who has specialized in this particular field. If your own family physician does not do electrolysis no doubt he can recommend you to someone who does. Sorry I cannot give names. (Copyright, 1937) or disappointment long held, bring on mental illness, and it is in this state of mental illness that mistaken parents or teachers mistreat, emotionally, the children left to their care.

What ought to be done about it? Educate the coming generation so that they know what effects their mental attitudes are likely to have on their behavior, on their success in life. Teach them their dual duties while they are yet in the high schools and while they continue through the colleges and universities and trade schools. It is only recently that people have become aware of their mental forces, and we are still in the beginnings of our discoveries in the field. But we know enough now to be on guard. A sound mind makes for a sound family life. Body and mind must work in health together.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Parents Wrong in Keeping Son Away From All Girls

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—We have an only son 20 years old and in college. He is a boy of high character and no bad habits. Doesn't care about tearing around with a bunch of boys. For two years he has known and taken out a very lovely girl, talented, with high ideals and a very good personality. She belongs to a very fine, educated family. They entertain a great deal for her. Have several young people in after skating, etc., and serve light refreshments. My son is very anxious to go there, but I insist that he see this girl only occasionally and that he shall have no intimate friends when in college. I don't want him to be in groups and think that if I give him money so that he can see the best shows alone and some sports that he should be satisfied. He often takes me to the theater, and that is better for him than taking the girl. After he is through college we intend to send him West, where we have relatives, so he may enter social life and meet some wealthy girls. Don't you think I am right in dictating to him about his friends and his leisure hours, when he is so young?

ANSWER: ANXIOUS MOTHER.

No. You are just as wrong as you can possibly be. In your love and anxiety to do the best for this fine son you are doing him a deadly wrong and bringing about the fate that you dread.

You are trying to segregate your son from life. You are trying to keep him away from all girls. You are denying him the innocent pleasures that belong to this time of life. These things are not only cruelties to themselves, but also they have disastrous results. For in the end the boy will either be warped in his character, or else the desire for the gayety that you deny him will break its bonds and he will go wild.

If you think you can keep your son from being interested in girls by keeping him from associating with them, you know little of human nature. Every lad must have his lass, as the old song says. If a boy is not permitted to go with nice girls he will find some one not so nice, and to whom his mother can't object because she never heard of her.

Forbidden waters are sweet, and nothing makes a boy so girl-crazy as for his mother to make them mysterious and glamorous by never letting him get acquainted with them, and by her making even a casual walk with one a dangerous adventure.

Believe me, you are making a great mistake by keeping your son away from this nice girl and her nice parties. Your boy, like every other boy, is bound to have some fun, and if you won't let him have common fun there is plenty of the other kind.

You are opposed to your son belonging to any group and think he should be satisfied to go to the movies or ball games alone. Have you forgotten your own youth entirely? Why, the very spirit of youth is gauged. Can't you recall when you belonged to the "crowd" would have been worse than death to you, and you would have rather stayed at home forever than not to have gone somewhere with a date? You wouldn't have been thrilled to have gone to even the finest play or the most spectacular athletic event with your father. Have a heart and remember your youth! Believe me, your youth hasn't changed since your day.

As I understand it, your plan is to keep your son isolated from all youthful companionship, especially from girls, so that he may not get into any tantalizing alliances, and thus have him go right to marry some rich girl, whom you have doubtless already picked out. It seems to me that this is a poor future and one that has little happiness in it that you have planned for your son. It is one that emasculates him. It is one that makes him a prisoner to his mother until she turns him over to the hanger-on of a rich wife. A better plan would be to let him have a normal life as a youth, with all the joy that belongs to youth, and to teach him to stand on his own feet and make his own fortune instead of trying to marry it. It is a terrible thing for parents to try to shape their children's lives, but fortunately it is one of the things that cannot be done unless the child is a weakling.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am grieving myself to death because my husband is in love with my best friend, but he denies it and won't let me discuss the affair. He continues to pretend to love me, but his demonstrations of love seem patronizing. Some months ago I noticed he began finding so much fault with me—my looks and my clothes, and he likes to joke about my being fat. We have been married many years and have fine children whom I do not want to hurt, but when I suspect he has been with this woman it nearly kills me, and I can't help showing him how I feel. I can't go to her and talk to her because I know she will deny it, too. Please help me to a solution of my problem.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

Answer: The two things that a woman shouldn't do when she suspects her husband of philandering is to make scenes with him about it, and to humiliate herself by going to the "other woman" and asking her to give him up. Both only serve to make a bad matter worse.

There is nothing like a wife's tears and reproaches to bring an incontinent love affair to a head. Many a man who was only amusing himself by a flirtation that would have died of itself if left alone has had his wife literally drive him into the "other woman's" arms by her taking it too seriously and going about with the air of a martyr. Sometimes a wife can laugh off her husband's affairs, but she can never cry them off.

No man can be told back into his home and to his duty by a wife who throws his sins in his teeth, rebukes him and keeps the atmosphere as blue as indigo. It inevitably drives him to the "other woman" who flatters and caresses him and makes things gay and pleasant for him. No doubt it is adding a lot of a woman with a roaming husband to self-pedal her wrongs, but it is good policy to do so if she wants her wandering boy back again.

It is useless and foolish for any wife to appeal to the "other woman" to restore her husband to her as good as new, and as much in love with her as he was on their wedding day, because the "other woman" couldn't do it if she would, and generally she wouldn't do it if she could. The woman who loses her husband might at least save her face by not going down on her knees to her rival and begging her to "take him back" give her back her husband's love.

In your particular case you seem to have no real evidence of your husband's infidelity, which makes it a doubly foolish thing for you to do anything except to try to overcome your jealousy and suspicion, and assume that things are as they always were between you and your husband.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

QUESTIONS FROM HOSTESSES

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband's family has presented me with his deceased mother's flat silver. The pattern belongs to the mid-Victorian period and is not, at least in my eyes, at all attractive. However, my husband loves it and expects me to use it with his same amount of joy. I shall do my best, but I am loath to conceal my dislike for it. Although I had so much wanted to add to my own silver where pieces were needed. What worries me is having to use together some silver of one kind and some of another decidedly ornate type. I suppose there is nothing for you to answer except that it will look pretty terrible, but it would be consoling to know that you have seen really attractive tables where mixed patterns of this description were used. Frankly, have you?

Answer: Yes, I have. I agree with you that if you were able to buy new silver it would be much better to have it match. But many, many tables are set with mixed silver, and the reason is obviously that very few men, or women, or even inherited silver, especially that which has a sentimental association.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you suggest a good menu for a ten o'clock wedding breakfast? There will be only about two dozen guests.

Answer: At that hour I would make it really a breakfast. Something such as melon and chicken mince with hashed cream potatoes or scrambled eggs and sausage, buttered hot breads, breakfast coffee (meaning coffee in big cups with sugar and cream), and I think that is enough. Wedding cake and either champagne or fruit cup or whatever you are going to use to drink the bride's health. Be sure of course part of every wedding collection.

Dear Mrs. Post: Has the vogue for "butter balls" gone out? Several years ago it seemed that every hostess served fancy designs of individual butter portions, but today I have never seen any more.

Answer: No, I think butter balls are still seen in many houses although it is true that in quite a number of houses butter is simply cut neatly into squares. The reason is probably that of time saving since very few of us have as many servants as we used to. One might, in fact, say that comparatively few have any.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to pick up the wide bouillon cups and drink from them? They seem almost too large, but my husband insists that their handles are not only intended for ornamentation.

Answer: Your husband is quite right. Moreover, you use both handles, one held in each hand. (Copyright, 1937)

Beautify Floors At Low Cost With Enamel, Varnish

Appleton Glass & Paint Co. Shows Way to Get Splendid Results

It is the desire of every home owner to have beautiful floors, least two or three rooms with linoleum floor coverings. Now these linoleum rugs or inlaid are bound to wear off in course of time. Don't discard worn linoleum. Try this very modern procedure.

Allow this coat to dry thoroughly. Select three or more colors that will harmonize with the other furnishings of your room. Pour each of these colors in shallow pans, one color to a pan.

Cut a large sponge into quarters, thus presenting flat surfaces with which to work. Use a sponge for each color you have selected. Dip it into the color and mottle your floor.

A number of attractive designs can be produced at the option of the painter. Do not be afraid to mottle colors over each other, as this blending makes a very beautiful effect.

When the mottling is entirely dry, varnish the floor with a good, clear Water Spar floor varnish. After this coat has dried, your floor will have a gloss which will protect and preserve the undercoat.

The pattern of your newly painted floor will last as long as the varnish.

Mueller's Guests Return Often for Enjoyable Meals

Popular Eating Place Offers Friendly, Enjoyable Atmosphere

Mueller's Tea Room and Tap Room, located at 114 E. College avenue, is one of the favorite spots for people who desire the best in food, service, and pleasant surroundings. These are important points of leadership too, as you will agree that it takes good food and charming surroundings to make a meal really enjoyable.

Observers have noted, more often than not, that Mueller's customers enter this unique eating place in a pleasant and expectant frame of mind, of course, being based upon previous pleasant experiences at Mueller's and upon the air of hospitality and refinement which characterizes the place. Mueller's, they say, is quiet but never dull. It presents a somewhat sophisticated appearance because of its service, selections of food and furnishings, yet it is eminently friendly. Families like to come here. Professional and business people like it. It is so handy, so near the downtown offices, and the food is "so good." College men and women find Mueller's a favorite gathering center at all times. They like the splendid food so swiftly and so courteously served. They appreciate, too, that all this comes at so low a cost.

Regular patrons of Mueller's and even people who have visited Mueller's only once do not have to be told that it is the place to go for the finest meals, lunches, soda fountain specials, or that its tap room is an ideal place to visit. Once you have tested the foods of this restaurant or enjoyed any of the beverages served so attractively from the tap room, you are sure to return for more at your first opportunity.

Anytime is beer time if it is Berliner Style beer, say the many people who daily enjoy this ever popular beverage. Folks who regularly enjoy Berliner beer refer to it as the beer with that extra sparkle, tang, and zest that gives you that second wind in pep, vigor, and energy. Admirers of this beverage also say that you can raise every glass of this beer with a joyous "here's health," and really mean it.

For Berliner beer, these friends will tell you, as will the local distributor Fred W. Kibbie, has had health brewed into it from the start. Berliner Style boasts something new in fine flavor. Its taste reveals fine brewing by expert brewers and it is this taste which accounts for the popularity of this brew among beer lovers. It is rightly termed an inviting brew because it lends taste thrills to all types of people.

Only the choicest hops and yeasts are used in its making; only the most deliberating care in production is observed and that, broadly speaking, is why Berliner Style is so luxuriously full-bodied, rich and gently stimulating. That is why Berliner has a surprisingly universal appeal which is bound to captivate you too, if given a single trial.

Home delivery service for eighties and bottle beer may be had by telephoning Fred W. Kibbie at 115 S. State street, 4626. A prompt and efficient delivery service is maintained.

"This is the 'ole left hander,' Joe Sanders and his Nighthawks, coming to you from the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago over WGN and the Mutual Broadcasting System."

That was the announcement that emanated from the Blackhawk Restaurant every night in the distinctive, bravado manner of the "ole left hander," Joe Sanders, who brings his famous Nighthawks to Cinderella ballroom, Tuesday, February 2, through arrangements with the Music Corporation of America, following his sensational return to the famous Chicago loop night spot, after an absence of almost two years from the orchestra field.

Sanders had been away from the orchestra field, it is true, for almost two years, but he had not given up his music, for in the two-year interim Joe could have been found in his beautiful Beverly Hills, California mansion, composing new tunes to introduce to the dance-loving public.

Of course, "the ole left hander" is better known to his millions of admirers as an orchestra leader, yet among musicians and composers he is recognized as one of the outstanding musical contributors of the present day, having written many smash dance and song tunes.

When Sanders brings his famous Nighthawks to Cinderella he will bring his own dynamic song styling, as well as the distinctive presentations of Barbara Parks and Jack Swift, both of whom were heard with the "ole left hander" at the Blackhawk in Chicago.
